Nixon Sees Inflation Easing

Slowing Pains Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asserted Friday the nation is "on the road to recovery from the disease of runaway prices" dut cautioned that the effort to cool off the economy is bound to produce "slowing pains."

In an address prepared for live radio broadcast to the nation, Nixon disclosed he will send a letter appealing for wage-price restraint to a cross section of business and labor leaders during the weekend.

The letter, he said, would ask them "to make their own future plans on the basis of working and selling in a country that is not fooling about slowing down the rise of the cost of living."

Declaring a confidence that the administration's antiinflation policies are "beginning to take hold," Nixon told citizens:

"You can make your plans on the basis that price rises are going to be slowing down."

The deliberate cooling off of the economy, however, inevitably will mean that some businesses will suffer from sluggish sales, he said.

"As we gently, but firmly, apply the brakes," said the President, "we are going to experience some 'slowing pains.' Like growing pains, these are a healthy development, but painful nevertheless."

Nixon promised the administration would view economic adjustments with compassion and would keep a close watch on the unemployment rate.

"There are some who say that a high rate of unemployment cannot be avoided," he added. "I do not agree. In our levelling-off process, we intend to do everything we can to resist increases in unemployment."

Presidential counselor Arthur F. Burns, who is to become the new head of the Federal Reserve Board, said in advance of the broadcast that Nixon was going to talk to his hearers "in a way that we hope will enable them to get the message."

He and Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told a White House neas conference definite indications of weakening inflation are beginning to appear.

Administration restraints "are pretty clearly now beginning to show some bite," McCracken said. Burns vowed "we will not budge" from restraints until they work.

While the President was preparing to appeal to consumers, his key economic advisers were trying to enlist the support of the nation's top industrialists for the administration policies.

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, McCracken and Burns were among those attending a closed meeting of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va. Indications were the administration would make its first direct appeal to big business to help slow the inflationary spiral.

Kennedy told the business leaders the administration would not ease anti-inflation measures prematurely, for fear of sparking a new round of inflation.

"We must and shall resist the all-too tempting route of moving into an expansionary posture too soon.

"That route would only lead America into a dismal and self-defeating cycle of stagnation and inflation."

Government sources also said they expect a similar appeal would be made to organized labor for restraint in wage demands.

Although administration spokesmen said their policies are doing the job of slowing inflation, the feeling was not unanimous on Capitol Hill.

Forty-four House Democrats called on the President Thursday to mount "a genuine war on inflation," including possible consumer credit controls. And they asked him to withdraw his objections to wage-price guideposts.

McCracken and Burns spoke after two days of conferences culminating with a meeting between Nixon and the chairman and Republican members of the Senate and House appropriations and finance committes.

Nixon made clear to the congressmen he might veto federal pay raise legislation—and also the tax reform bill if it would contribute to a budget deficit.

He also appealed to Congress to extend the income tax surcharge until next June at 5 per cent, half its current figure.

Car Kills Woman in Neelyville

Patsy Jane Haynes of Corning, Ark., believed to be in her 30s, was struck and killed by a 1967 Ford, driven by Cloyce Gene Pierce, 31, Corning, the state patrol reported.

Her body was taken to the Cotrell Funeral Home in Poplar Bluff, awaiting identification.

McCormack Aide Draws Suspension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top aide of House Speaker John W. McCormack has been suspended following a charge he interceded in a stock case with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Martin Sweig, 46, who has been on McCormack's staff for 24 years, was named in an SEC suit as having arranged a meeting last May at which the SEC was asked to lift a ban on the sale of Parvin-Dohrmann Co. stock.

The suit says Parvin-Dohrmann paid $50,000 to Nathan Voloshen, a friend of McCormack's for whom it said Sweig arranged the meeting. A week later the SEC ban against sale of the stock was lifted.

McCormack, D-Mass., said in a statement that he was unaware of Sweig's alleged involvement in the SEC proceedings until earlier this week. The statement was handed out to reporters and the 76-year-old speaker was said to be out of town.

"Martin Sweig admits an error of judgment but denies any improper conduct as a member of my staff," said the statement. "He has worked for me for over 24 years. He has never given me reason to doubt his loyalty or integrity.

"I will be shocked if the trust and responsibility I have placed in him has been abused. He assures me that it has not."

McCormack said Sweig has been suspended from his $36,000 a year job without pay "until all questions concerning this matter have been resolved."

The SEC suit, filed Thursday in New York, charged fraudulent activities by a group of Parvin-Dohrmann stockholders in gaining control of the company last year.

The plant will contain 167,000 square feet of working space, will be built by the company on land purchased a couple years ago and will be completed late in 1970.

The new plant, which will be operated by the corporation's Consumer Products Division, will manufacture Eveready batteries for flashlights, transistor radios and general appliances.

Inquest Battle Renews

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — The attorneys for the parents of Mary Jo Kopechne insisted today "there is no good cause or urgent necessity" for an autopsy on her body. Disturbing her grave "would be grossly offensive."

Attorney Joseph F. Flanagan filed an answer to an amended petition by Dist. Atty. Edmond Dinis, New Bedford, Mass., who has asked Common Pleas Judge Bernard C. Brominski to approve exhumation for an autopsy.

The hearing on the petition is scheduled to begin next Monday at 10 a.m.

The 28-year-old secretary was killed on he night of July 18 when a car operated by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy plunged off a narrow bridge and overturned in a pond on Chapaquiddick Island off the Massachusets coast. Her death was ruled by drowning, without an autopsy.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Kopechne of Berkeley Heights, N.J., have vigorously opposed disturbing her grave.

Flanagan said further that "the cause of death has been clearly

Flanagan, in his eight-page answer said that if the judge should order exhumation it would be "prejudicial to the wishes, sensitivities, health and well-being" of the parents.

Twirlers of seven other bands appeared as did the Dexter band.

The three center bands presented a formation spelling BAND, then moved into FESTIVAL, followed by a shift to spell out Poplar Bluff, Sikeston and Jackson, whose directors played the leading role in the formation of the event with the twirlers taking over as the bands played "Signal of Honor" march, honoring the first directors.

Soviet Trawler Fired on, Hit

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese navy vessel fired on and hit a Soviet trawler off the coast of South Vietnam on Thursday but the trawler escaped with smoke pouring from her forward section, official sources reported.

The informants said today the trawler was intercepted by a South Vietnamese naval patrol boat inside South Vietnam's 12-mile territorial waters limit south of Da Nang. The patrol boat asked the trawler to identify herself and when she refused the Vietnamese fired a warning shot, the sources added.

When the trawler continued on her course, the Vietnamese craft fired another shot but this time aimed to hit and did, the sources said. Nevertheless, the trawler headed into open sea.

MPES Says State Fiscal Outlook Dim

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey painted a gloomy fiscal picture for Missouri's government today.

In a detailed study the taxpayers organization said:

-If the forces of Sen. Earl Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, are successful in their effort to refer to the voters at the November 1970 general election the income tax increase law enacted last month, Missouri's treasury would be short about $66 million for the 1970-71 budget. That would reflect the loss of the tax revenues from the time it would become effective if the voters approved it in November- probably a year.

-If the voters rejected the increase in Nobember 1970, the entire $106 million hoped for from the tax boost would be lost for the 1970- 71 budget, a dilemma that could only be averted by some other stopgap tax increase measure - perhaps raising the sales tax from 3 cents on a dollar sale to 4 cents.

-And even if the income tax became effective Jan. 1 because the referendum campaign failed, Missouri still would be an estimated $102 million short for the 1971-72 budget.

The survey recommended "that the legislature in its budget session next year re- examine expenditures and commitments affecting the 1970-71 fiscal year."

It made no recommendations on how multi- million dollar savings could be achieved.

2 More Soviets Land

MOSCOW (AP) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 8.

Moscow Radio said Soyuz 7, carrying Anatoly Filipchenko, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Gorbatko, landed in the Soviet Union. It was in orbit nearly five days.

Still flying in space aboard Soyuz 8 were veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Shatalov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The other ship in this biggest-ever mission, Soyuz, 6, was brought to earth Thursday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov aboard.

Soyuz 8 is expected to land Saturday.

Soyuz 7 landed 96 miles northwest of Karaganda, in Kazakhstan, only 15 miles from the site where Soyuz 6 came down. The broadcast said search parties reached the spacecraft quickly and the three cosmonauts "feel excellent."

The mission of Soyuz 7 was declared "successfully completed," as Soyuz 6's flight had been 24 hours earlier.

The only pioneering aspect of the flight announced so far has been the testing by Soyuz 6 of new automatic welding equipment to determine the feasibility of its use in the construction in space of a large orbiting station or platform, the goal of the current Soviet space program.

Jobless Rate in Area Holds Steady in Fall

By CHARLES BRADY

One sign that the government's anti-inflation fight is starting to take effect was the jump in national unemployment rate from 3.6 per cent to 4 per cent last month.

Residents of the four-county area of Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, and New Madrid need not be concerned, according to Leon O. Garnett, manager of the Sikeston office of the Missouri Division of Employment Security.

Although the rate of unemployment in the four-county area was five per cent a year ago in September and Scott County was four per cent last year in September, it has remained the same while the national rate increased four-tenths of a per cent.

"One of the major reasons for this stability," Garnett stated, "is that the farm industry tends to reduce unemployment during the months of September and October. The fall months are usually the lighter months of unemployment in this area due to the harvest and all."

To show the activity of the office in Sikeston, in the four county area in September, there were 542 new worker applications. This was a slight increase from August when there were 509 applications. The majority of these came from Scott county. At the same time last year, there were 443 new applications.

Garnett said that temporary unemployment is a little heavier than normal. In September 845 were temporarily laid off work.

The majority of the unemployed, according to Kenneth Story, Employment Service Supervisor, are "industrial production workers and laborers." In answer to what could be done about reducing the rate of unemployment, both Garnett and Story replied "jobs. More jobs."

Garnett said "the various industries coming in to this area and the businesses beginning operations have affected unemployment. This results in an increase in new work applications."

The active file of those unemployed at the end of September were 1,615. These are the ones that have been to the office to see about a job within the past 60 days. Garnett also said that although figures were not available for September the number of initial claims for unemployment insurance in September of 1968 totaled 390. He said the number this year would be slightly higher.

Garnett stated that the Missouri Division of Employment Security in Sikeston have made an increase in job placements in 1969 with 231 placements. At the same time last year, 107 placements were made. In 1969, 71 were referred to jobs outside the immediate area as compared to only one in 1968. Garnett went on to say that "in 1968, there were 158 job openings in this office. At the same time this year, there are 291 job openings here."

At the fiscal year beginning July 1968 to June 1969, the total new work applications received at the Sikeston office was 5,075. Of this number, 222 were handicapped, 477 received job counseling service, and 1,207 received specific aptitude testing. Of those being tested, 85 took the proficiency test. These were clerical workers.

During this fiscal year from July, 1968, to June, 1969, a total of 1,333 non-agricultural job placements were made. Of this number, 153 were short time placements. Seventy-one of the non-agricultural placements were handicapped. The office placed 553 youths and 24 boys went to the job corps.

Garnett said that there are special services given to employers and prospective employees. One such service is the aptitude testing program. This program assists employers in selecting workers for the job at hand.

A program for the benefit of prospective employees is an operation that has been underway for several years under the manpower development and training act. Under this program, the department of education and the Division of Employment Security work together to select and recruit people who need to be trained. The Division of Employment Security determines the field and then refers the people to the department of education where they receive job training. The people then are referred to the Division of Employment Security for job placement. Garnett said that in 1970, training of approximately 225 has been approved.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Sikeston's people are proud of her. They are proud of her for they have built and invested her qualities deep within. They have invested in her future because they know she is their future.

Another time for investment has come, however. Will you go to the polls Oct. 21 and vote yes to build a building to house a factory of Keystone Consolidated Inc.? This is a question that corporate planners other than those of Keystone are awaiting an answer. It is essential these people are shown that Sikeston is willing to do its part for progress. The Oct. 21 vote needs resounding approval, such as a 20 to 1 majority, to insure that everyone knows Sikeston is ready for progress.

We, the people, in Sikeston already know the answer. This explains the progress of our schools, hospital, city planning, etc. But go to the polls Oct. 21 and vote to let everyone know Sikeston is a synonym for the word progress.

STORE PRIZES SUBJECT TO NEW ADVERTISING RULES

Advertising of games of chance used to promote supermarket and service station sales will hereafter have to declare the odds of winning and other information intended to give the customer a better idea of his chances.

The new Federal Trade Commission trade regulation rule, effective in two months, touches all advertising. The exact number of prizes in each category and the odds (for prizes of $25 or more) must be updated in ads of games running more than 30 days.

The geographic area, number of outlets and termination date of the game must also be disclosed in the ads.

Details required may drive the so-called "sweepstakes" ads out of the broadcast media and there is no question that there will be a shake-up in some wild promotion plans which have plagued the public.

THE BITE OF FALL

It's not that we don't think fall is a lovely, exciting season. We enjoy, just as much as the next person, the flaming foliage, the back-to-school challenge, the warm glow of Thanksgiving and the foot-stomping thrill of a soaring forward pass.

Yet fall still has a moment of harsh truth, a biting snap of realization, to it. It usually comes about now, too, in midfall, when all the summer suits and dresses go off to the cleaners for the last time, or when you discover, suddenly, that you need your headlights and heater on while driving to work on a chilled morning. Summer, even Indian summer, is gone. And lying ahead, unexpectedly, it seems, are all those struggles with heavy boots, mittens for the four-year-old and snow on the windshield.

It's at that moment - even though you've read how cold weather builds hardy character and know how contrasting seasons spice a variety of life - when you shudder silently and wonder if approaching winter really needs to be all that spicy.

THE RIGHT TO BE LET ALONE

A camerman charged with harassment for taking pictures of Mrs. Aristotle Onassis and her son, John F. Kennedy, Jr., bicycling in New York's Central Park faces a hearing in criminal court on Thursday (Oct. 16).

The right to be alone -- and to be let alone -- is being challenged everywhere today. Mr. Justice Louis Brandeis once held the right to be alone "the most comprehensive of rights, and the right most valued by civilized men."

The right of privacy, which is the usual legal phrase, seems to come most in question when people who are most public try to become private. Two examples spring to mind. Jackie Onassis has had two dubious experiences with photographers recently, and at least one of them has been haled into court.

Christine Keeler, the call girl in the scandal that forced John Profumo to retire as Britain's Minister of War in 1963, is publishing the rather FANNY HILL details of her six career in NEWS OF THE WORLD, a London gossip sheet. Profumo has been working hard, entirely privately, in a social settlement in London's East End. Britain's law of libel is pretty tough, but there is no guarantee of privacy. Lord Devlin, retiring chairman of Britain's Press Council, told newspapermen that Britain's press ought to police itself and not try to profit from a man's "sins, follies and misfortunes."

Talleyrand wrote: "The private life of a citizen ought to be within walls." Chief Justice Alton B. Parker of the New York Court of Appeals held: "A man has a right to pass through this world, if he wills, without having his picture published, his business enterprises discussed, his successful experiments written up for the benefit of others, or his eccentricities commented upon, whether in handbills, circulars, catalogues, newspapers or periodicals."

The first important statement on the right of privacy was an article in the HARVARD LAW REVIEW of Dec. 15, 1890, in which Brandeis and Prof. Samuel D. Warren explored and defended the individual's right to decide what facts about himself might be kept to himself.

Invasions of privacy, of course, take various forms, from electronic and other tupes of eavesdropping to mail taps and government surveillance of Americans abroad. Editorial Research Reports observed in April 1966: "The question now is how to reconcile the legitimate interests of society in recording personal information on individuals with the individual's right to privacy. Recent court opinions have established some new guidelines, but the uncharted area between public and private privilege remains large."

Alan F. Westin of Columbia University, a law-oriented social historian, reported on a four-year study by a special committee of the New York City Bar Association. He wrote: "The right to speak, to publish, to worship, and to associate cannot survive in the modern age of scientific penetration of house, auto, office, and meeting room unless the courts and public mores install a curtain of law and practice to replace the walls and doors that have been swept away by the new instruments of surveillance."

Probably no court or moral action can protect individuals from univited memoirs such as MY LIFE WITH JACQUELINE KENNEDY by a secretary, Mary Barelli Gallagher. A recent spate of Hollywood biographies and autobiographies has wounded many. But there probably is no remedy, and some good may come of it. If memory serves, Dr. Johnson didn't authorize Boswell.

What is it liked to be chronically handicapped?

Some six million Americans can give an answer to this question, with varying degrees of desperation or hope, depending on how they managed to overcome their disability.

When the family breadwinner or the family homemaker is struck by disability, the effects spread beyond the individual to encompass entire households. Then many million more people may feel its ravages.

To understand what it's like, put yourself hypothetically in a wheelchair, or between crutches, or strap on heavy leg braces. Experience the futility of trooping around, in and out of places of employment, listening to the monotony of excuses which pass for refusals.

Try to navigate the steps at entrances to office buildings, court houses, libraries, churches, eating places, theaters. Try to reach the public telephone, or refresh yourself from the thoughtlessly designed water fountain.

Watch the public transit vehicles go by, inaccessible to your wheelchair. Feel yourself ignominiously hoisted into an airplane by a fork-lift while hundreds of impatient passengers watch. Search the want ads for an apartment that can accomodate your needs. See what it's like to try in function in an environment that is molded in perfect anatomical specimens.

Yet this is the world where, day in and day out, men and women with physical limitations try to make their mark. The majority of them do, and do it well. Others could succeed with understanding and increased opportunities. They need all of us to help them help themselves.

During this observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, let us keep in mind the needs of handicapped people and act with more thoughtfulness when the occasion presents itself. If we are in a position to consider such a person for a job opening, let's be sure we give him fair consideration, judging his ability and not his disability. If we have a chance to make the environment more liveable for persons with functional limitations, let's remember that in so doing, all of us benefit.

NEW YORK (AP) — There are seven basic problems that lead to marital conflict, a New Jersey marriage counselor reports: children, sex, alcohol, inlaws, religion, housekeeping and finances.

Although she seems to have covered the subject pretty well, she has failed to touch on the basic problem in our household: who is going to run the wastebasket concession.

It's easier to sneak narcotics through customs than to sneak anything out of our house into the garbage can.

My husband has a distinct reverence for age. I'm not talking merely of his fondness for me but of his refusal to throw out anything that has been in his possession even briefly.

If I discard something when it is fairly new only a small reprimand ensues. But if anything has been around as long as a week it takes on all the value of a rare antique and my misdemeanor becomes a felony.

"You're not throwing out our dear little baby's teething ring," my hoarding husband says in horror. "Why, we've had that for years!"

Indeed we have. Since our dear little baby is now in c llege and chewing on her fingernails rather than a small plastic circle, I doubt if there's much of a future for that particular item. But it's small, so I retrieve it from the trash with only a minimum of argument.

However, the 20-year-old television set is big enough to fight for—or against. It has a seveninch screen but is bulkier than modern ones with screens more than twice that size. For 15 years it's been stuffed into the garage, along with trunks of books, electric train sets from my husband's boyhood, cans of dried-up paint and rusty nails.

"But this was one of the first TVs made," the family collector insists. "It's a museum piece."

So is the watch with no hands, no crystal and no stem his parents gave him when he graduated from junior high. So is the red metal dump truck with most of the paint scratched off he had as a child. So is the broadbrimmed hat from his Boy Scout days. But to date the Smithsonian Institution hasn't expressed much interest.

He calls it sentiment. I call it clutter.

One day, when he was safely at work, I decided to make a dent in the old newspapers nestled on closet shelves along with old scrapbooks and letters he wrote his parents from camp.

I had just gotten down some 50 pounds worth chronicling such events as the start of World War II when in he walked, home early for the first time in months. "What," he demanded accusingly, "do you have those out for?"

I thought fast. "I've developed a sudden interest in ancient history," I said. "I was going to look through these and see if they really told it like it was."

He's keeping an even sharper eye on the wastebasket these days. The only way I'll be able to get rid of those papers is to chew them up and swallow them.

"You Sure Have a Green Thumb!"

FARMER'S WIDOW

THIS LITTLE STORY deals with a salesman and the rural maiden, so be warned. But it is slightly different.

It so happened that two salesmen traveling together had car trouble on a lonely country road and it was necessary to stay at the first farmhouse for the night.

Instead of finding the farmer, they discovered that he had died the year before, leaving a beautiful young widow. She welcomed them in and asked that they use the spare room upstairs.

The next morning she prepared a fine breakfast and they went on their way. Five months later they were discussing that particular night and one asked the other:

"Say, you didn't by chance sneak downstairs that night, did you?"

"Yeah," he replied. "I did."

"Well, you didn't by any chance tell her you were me, did you?"

"Yes, I did. I'm sorry."

"Well, don't be. I just got a letter from her attorney today. She died last week and left me her farm."

For years two monks lived together in concord and amity. The monotony of their life finally moved one to say, "Let us get out of the groove of our humdrum round of daily tasks and do something different-let us do as the world does."

Having lived the sequestered life so long, the other monk inquired, "What does the world without do?"

"Well, for one thing," stated the first monk, "the world quarrels. See that stone? Let us place it between us, and each one say, 'The stone is mine!' "

Willing to accommodate his friend, the second monk picked up the stone and placed it between them, then exclaimed, "The stone is mine!"

Pausing for reflection, and feeling the compulsion of their years of friendship, the monk who suggested the quarrel concluded, "Well, brother, if the stone is thine, keep it"

And there was no quarrel.

Have you ever wished to know the secret of a famous person's success? Usually successful people are just ordinary human beings with this exception: They work a little longer and a little harder than most of us. They let neither discouragement nor doubt nor seeming failure stand in the way of their ultimate success.

You will find this particularly true should you visit Hollywood and become acquainted with some of the people you have come to know through the parts they portray on the screen. Warm-hearted, co-operative, bouyant, loyal men and women you would find most of them to be.

To accomplish anything at all, says one who has accomplished, a person must combine a sense of humor with discouragement and elation. Says another, "I have noticed that usually the right door has a way of appearing when you are really ready to open it."

A FRIEND IN NEED — IS A FRIEND INDEED

Friendliness begins with you---and friendliness is caught---not taught. To have friends, we must be friendly. We must remember that everyone needs our friendship-the young, the old, the sick, the saint, the sinner, the rich, the poor, the black, the white, the yellow, the red and all. Especially, do we need to be a real friend to the ones in trouble. Just one smile, kind word or a listening ear might mean the destiny of a troubled teenager. The world is in real need of composed, self-controlled, peaceful parents as well as leaders in our cities, schools and government.

Webster says: One attached to another by esteem, respect and affection. In other words how many people hold you in esteem with respect and affection? Ponder this question and resolve to be a better friend to one and all.

NO END TO PATRIOTISM

Patriotism is not a suit of clothing to be worn for a season and then discarded. The standards of patriotism are no different today from what they were a century or two centuries ago.

The courage, valor and sacrifice of the Founders of Freedom gave birth to our Declaration of Independence and Federal Constitution. They stood for and fought for the primacy of the individual under a free government and laws. That is the heritage they handed down to us.

Patriotism is love of country so strong and enduring that men will make the supreme sacrifice in defense of their country and their freedom. The curtain is never rung down on the patriot's role. There is always work for him to do, and to him it is the most joyous and rewarding work in the world.

A key factor in his self-appointed task is sharing his patriotism with others. This may be accomplished in many ways. One of the most satisfying and effective ways is writing letters to the editor on freedom subjects. Through such letters the patriot can reach a tremendous audience of newspaper readers. He will discover for himself the lasting truth of the old adage, "A drop of ink makes millions think."

Short, crisp letters to the editor, each on a single topic, are among the best weapons the patriot has in the fight to save freedom in America. In today's world there is certainly no lack of subjects for the right-minded. Letters to the editor give the patriot an opportunity th let his patriotism and culture show. HLH

Washington - Merry Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

TOKYO–President Nixon's brave attempt ot reduce the U. S. build-up in the far east has got the brass hats more agitated than any event since the military pay raise was turned down.

From Thailand to Taiwan, the Generals are firing off hot memos left and right to fight off the cutbacks. The bureaucratic bombardment, apparently, has shaken the Pentagon.

This column has examined the secret exchange, for example, between the Pentagon and the military advosory group on Taiwan. The advisors are commanded by peppery Maj. Gen. R. G. Ciccolella, who believes passionatedly that the U. S. should provide Chiang Kai-shek with more, not less, military aid.

If our nuclear bases on Okinawa are dismantled to appease the Japanese, for instance, Ciccolella wants to relocate them on Taiwan. Old Chiang has already constructed some handy runways, storage tanks and other facilities as an encouragement. This, however, would upset the Chinese Communists with whom Nixon is trying to restore a dialogue.

Ciccolella has also protested vigorously against trimming U. S. support for Chiang's armed forces. From the secret crossfire between Ciccolella's group and the Pentagon, there are excerpts which illustrate the opposition Nixon is encountering in the far east:

CHIANG'S OBJECTIVE

The Pentagon contends that Chiang's forces "are more than adequate" for defending Taiwan and the offshore islands against a Chinese Communist amphibious assault.

However, their "primary objective," claims the Pentagon, "has been to regain control over the mainland provinces. On that basis, Chiang has been able to justify maintaining land and amphibious forces which substantially exceed the defense requirements for Taiwan, the Penghus, or the main offshore islands. The additional divisions would be used in operations on mainland China."

Retorts Ciccolella's group: "although the USG (U. S. Government) does not officially indorse the back-to-the-Mainland program, and it is probable that the vast majority of Chinese military personnel have had few real illusions concerning the practical aspects of this program, however, it has served as the cement to hold the GRC (Government, Republic of China) intact in the absence of any real or emotional rallying point....

"We do know privately," adds the Taiwan team confidentially, "that the GRC considerable sums of money in special funds, mostly marked for contingency use in Mainland recovery."

The Pentagon, questioning the value of Chiang's extra forces, points out: "The presence of large GRC army had not caused a reduction in the CPR (Chinese peoples republic) threat to either Southeast Asia or Northeast Asia because the CPR has not diverted sizeable defense forces to the Foochow military region (F,M,R) opposite Taiwan....

RED CHINESE THREAT

"DIA (defense intelligence agency) has concluded," adds the Pentagon, "on the basis of limitations on CPR logistic capabilities that the CPR could not mount major offensives on more than one front. The CPR threat to Northeast or Southeast Asia would be reduced (if) it became clear that a major offensive against Taiwan was being launched. Some U. S. forces maintained for the defense of either Southeast Asia or Korea could then be redeployed to Taiwain. A U. S. commitment of forces should be more than adequate to deter the CPR."

Ciccolella and his advisers disagreed.

"The CPR military capabilities," they warn, "will improve over the next decade with continued emphasis on the improvement of nuclear weapons capabilities...The CPR has the capability to erupt numerous conflicts which would immobilize U. S. forces in other areas of Asia negating any U. S. assistance to the GRC."

Ciccolella is particularly eager to modernize Chiang's small navy. The Pentagon, however, insists that "the U. S. now maintains the complicated and expensive naval weapon systems necessary to defeat either the USSR or CPR in an Asian sea war. This U. S. capability is more than sufficient for any combiation of naval threats."

CHIANG'S NAVY

Because the U. S. seeks "to avoid a direct US-CPR confrontation," however, the Pentagon has furnished Chiang with enough ships to patrol the coast, supply the offshore islands and ward off a Red Chinese amphibious attack.

The Chinese nationalist navy "will retain these capabilities," in the Pentagon's opinion, "through FY 73 (Fiscal year 1973) without major investment in new ships or craft largely because the CPR does not appear to be developing naval offensive forces."

Contradicts the Ciccolella team: "Estimates of CPR shipbuilding are poor, but information is available which indicates that the naval shipbuilding is progressing at a faster rate than indicated (by the Pentagon) we believe that the situation is underestimated....

"The GRC has not successfully engaged the Chicom (C,C) navy in several years, having lost three costly engagements in 1965. (The Pentagon) study does not credit the Chicom navy with the superior performance capability indicated above, nor does it take into consideration the rapid obsolescence of the GRC naval ships."

At this time, it isn't at all certain whether President Nixon will be able to carry out his cutbacks or whether the entrenched brass hats in the Far East will win the secret debate

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SODOM BY THE SEA:

New York: -- New politics is the old politics revisited. By old politics we mean 1968, of course. Anyone who'd go back further than a year or so in this maelstrom of the new politics destroy the old in a show of shows, a political rally to end all rallies. It was run for the benefit of the re-election campaign of John V. Lindsay who is playing the Republican Party like a yo-yo, up and down, mostly down.

It was in truth a rally run and a show written by those who helped amash the Democratic Party from within, last year -- and now cheerfully and nonpartisanly are giving equal time to the Grand Old Party of which John Lindsay is one of the youth.

Everybody in the new Madison Square Garden auditorium guffawed when President Nixon was mocked, Vice President Spiro Agnew and Mrs. Agnew were lewdly skewed and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was satirized.

It was a "grand coalition" the other Saturday night who came and paid $150 a ticket to be amused by a program titled "Who's that With John Lindsay?" Well, with Mayor Lindsay was the old vanguard bolstered by some new faces. There was Frankie Sinatra and Judy Collins (guitar and all), and Ethel Merman and Harry Belafonte and Barbra Streisand, Helen Hayes, Robert Ryan, Sidney Poitier, and of course the new graduate, Dustin Hoffman. And there was old Eli Wallach, who did more than insinuate that those calling for law and order were plagiarizing an old speech of Adolf Hitler. It did for a moment, Attila the Hun or not, sound like Hollywood in the '30s coming out of the silent movies.

But this is not a review of contemporary political vaudeville lacking only dear old Gypsy Rose Lee. This is a report on the end of political parties in this magelapolis -- and the fact that the coalition plans to go for broke in many a major city if it works here.

This is a coalition of Gene McCarthy's lads and lassies, of the Kennedys' government - in - exile, of the Liberal Party now frequented mostly by unions of the old left and the bring-the-boys-home labor leaders who first whipped up the slogan back in 1945 -- and of John V. Lindsay who some day hopes to run for president of the U. S.

It doesn't take a million-dollar vaudeville package to portray the coalition. They have all been in it for the Vietnam Moratorium -- Henry Foner, the furriers union leader who is chairman of the revamped Liberal Party's Trade Union Committee; the Local 1199 union of hospital workers (remember Charleston) David Livingston, a militant who appears to have coined the Bring-the-Boys-Home slogan while in khaki during the last big unpleasantness; Adam Walinsky, once half the brain trust of the late Bobby Kennedy, and a host of others -- in person.

This mayorality race, therefore, is not a local election. It is the making of a precedent.

The coalition's first assignment was to smash the old-line Democratic machine puffing along on a few cylinders for Mario Procaccino, who does a fair job of simulating Fiorello LaGuardia, lucky street corner et al. Then the job was attempted on the Republican Party on one State Sen. John Marchi, an erudite state legislator who has a master's degree, has voted on 25,000 bills and who the coalition is certain is Attila the Hun.

Now the coalition's task is to elect John Lindsay on the esoteric Liberal Party and Independent Party lines. Buy why?

John Lindsay is a Republican who lost the primaries – that old populist thing which Gov. LaFollette fought for -- for the people. John Lindsay's eagerness to win is understandable. But why should the McCarthy - Kennedy people fight for him? Mayor Lindsay did, after all, put Spiro Agnew into nomination at the Miami Convention.

Point is, that the coalition believes it is rolling up a pile of IOUs for the '70 and '72 elections. If John Lindsay wins by defeating both the Republicans and Democratic candidates in this three-cornered race, he'll have to repay his political debts. These will be called, at the highest interest rates, sooner than he thinks. Because of new state election laws, the "new politics" leaders will be in old-fashioned smoke-filled rooms in less than 90 days wheeling and dealing on candidates for the U. S. Senate and the governorship. The coalition likes the new, new "Republican" Sen. Goodell who is filling out Bob Kennedy's term. So the coalition will go for him in the senatorial race and demand reciprocal support for its own "Democratic Party" choice for a candidate to compete with Nelson Rockefeller.

This means the Kennedy-McCarthy latter-day combination -- if it wins the governorship for a nominal Democrat -- will send a powerful delegation to the Democrats' '72 nominating convention.

Thus Mr. Lindsay, win or lose, will have to back Charles Goodell for re-election and also bolt his own party again by battling Nelson Rockefeller, Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew.

If he doesn't, no one will ever take his IOUs again. Thus it's all a three-way parley the new left coalition is playing -- it wants to re-elect John Lindsay as mayor. Then use this huge city as the base for a power play throughout New York so it can capture the state for its kind of Democrats. And then use its big delegation to force the nomination of a of a Kennedy-McCarthy type national ticket in '72.

What happens to Mayor Lindsay? Well, he believes the coalition is his and he the hunter will get the bird. The coalition believes he's theirs, and the dog will get the bird.

That's to be seen. The bird, like the public, is gun shy. It's allergic to buckshot. It may leave the hunter and the dog in the cold, cold swamp.

New Creed Proclaims Right Of Youth To Be Sloppy

Dear Ann Landers: Some newspapers don't care what they print. My teen-agers just waved under my nose an article from the Sunday supplement that put my campaign for orderliness back thirty years. I read it twice to make sure I wasn't seeing things.

The article said it is o.k. for kids to be sloppy -- it's part of growing up. If Mary leaves her clothes on the floor -- so what? If Jimmy leaves his bike out in the rain -- forget it. It just proves that they don't attach much importance to material things. The piece continued, "Hooray for the new value system! It's better than ours was!"

The article states specifically that mothers aren't supposed the nag kids about making their beds or putting their clothes where they belong. "Be blind," the article said. "Don't nag about trifles. The freedom to be sloppy is a teenage right."

Ann, you are our final hope. If you agree with this article I'm going to slit my throat. --- Put Them All Together They Spell Mother

Dear Mother: One of the liveliest freedoms of all is the freedom to disagree. And I do --- wholeheartedly.

That article will undoubtedly be heralded by exhausted mothers as an excuse to give up the fight. But I implore you to hang in there, Mom. It takes work and perseverance to teach children to be orderly. Today's sloppy kid is tomorrow's noodnik husband or lousy housekeeper. "New value system" my Aunt Minnie. Sloppy means lazy and there is nothing of value in THAT.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my husband and I visited with a couple who live up the street. When we came he said, "Please don't ask me to go over there again." I knew why. The woman finished her husband's sentences, corrected his grammar, interrupted him with -- "No, dear, it wasn't like that at all. It was this way." She belittled him and put him down every time he opened his mouth.

These people are socially prominent and the man is well thought of, but his wife makes such a nothing of him, it is embarrassing to be in their company.

Please print this letter and the name of the city. I don't have the nerve to tell the woman why we will not go to her place again or invite her to ours. Thank you. --- Had It

Dear Had: Here's your letter buy I'm NOT printing the city. Every town in the U. S., Canada, Puerto Rico and Mexico has wives who fit your description. Let the battle-axes ask themselves, "Could this be me?"

Confidential to Clutched: What you really want is someone to tell you not to marry the man, so I'll be the one. His track record is a poor one. And yours isn't anything to write home about either. Futhermore there are too many obstacles and neither of you has a history for tenacity or endurance. What can you build with this man -- besides an ulcer? And you've got that already.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mrs. Dell Angerer

Women's Council On Community Improvement

Mrs. Dell Angerer, Kansas City artist and school consultant, will spend two weeks in Stoddard County, October 20-31, as an "Artist - in - Residence," under a program provided by the Missouri State Council on the Arts of cooperation with the WCCI Committee on the Arts.

Mrs. Angerer is a graduate of the University of South Dakota with a master's degree from the University of Kansas and is currently working toward a doctor's degree at New York University. Despite her busy schedule, she has found time to pursue her personal expression of art and recently opened an exhibit in Kansas City.

The Kansas City Star in reviewing the exhibit commented, "--the Unitarian Gallery has opened the windows and let in a gust of fresh air on the Kansas City art scene. The artist is Dell Angerer, who is showing paintings, prints, and appliqued cloth. Mrs. Angerer has shown the possibilities for wit in art and has installed mannequins to demonstrate how her appliqued cloth might look in dresses, and with her strong sense of design and color the dresses are handsome indeed."

In each of the county elementary schools, Mrs. Angerer will present a "Halloween Happening," in which she will illustrate ways for children to be creative with pumpkins, masks, and costuming. She will, also, spend a part of her day with the junior-senior high art classes as a consultant.

A highlight of the artist's residency will be a series of four informal evening lecture-demonstrations, which will be open to any interested adults or youths of this area. A display of Mrs. Angerer's work can be seen at these sessions. There will be no charge for any of these events to be held at the Dexter Library Civic Center, starting at 7:30 p.m. on the following schedule: Monday, Oct. 20, "Acrylics, Polymers, and Oils"; Wed., Oct. 22, Drawings and Watercolors; Tuesday, Oct. 28, Block Prints and Fabric Design; Thursday, Oct. 30, Design Critique.

The Gospel Visitor

By: REEDUS M. BAUGHER
"FAITH COMES BY HEARING"

A concept of "saving faith," basic to much denominational teaching, makes faith a "gift of God" -- something God directly puts in the heart of the individual. Man is thought to be so depraved, so opposed to anything good, that direct devine intervention is necessary to make man receptive to the things of God. But reflecting upon the very meaning of "faith" shows us that it is an act of man's, something man does. He "believes" or refuses to "believe."

During the early years of Barton W. Stone, as a Presbyterian preacher, these were vexing thoughts. "Often when I was addressing the listening multitudes on the doctrine of total depravity, their inability to believe -- and of the necessity of the physical power of God to produce faith; and then persuading the helpless to repent and believe the gospel, my zeal in a moment would be chilled at the contradiction. How can they believe? How can they repent? How can they do impossibilities? How can they be guilty of not doing them?"

Evolving from this basic concept of faith, has come the "Universalists," -- who reasons since God is good and since salvation belongs to him, and since Christ died for all, all will be saved. But these fail to remember, that, "Faith comes by hearing." "In flaming fire taking vengence on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Thess. 1:8)

Then to, there were those in the days of Jesus who said, "Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man; for thou regardest not the person of man." (Matt. 22:16) But we know they were not sincere in this, had they been they would have followed Him, instead they opposed Him. Many today say, he is true and teachest the way of God in truth; but prove by their life that they do not mean it. If we believe our own words, we will not quibble about what he says. (Mark 16:15-16) "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Faith comes by hearing.

The "Atheist" has reasoned, "there is no God." But faith comes to them as it does to all, by hearing. -- "For he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Heb. 11:6)

If any person ever expects to be saved he must first realize that "faith" doesn't "just come," rather, "FAITH COMES BY HEARING THE WORD OF GOD." (Rom. 10:17)

Clothes Are Her Thing

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ann Miller, the star who gave the Broadway musical, "Mame," a new lease on life, was talking about clothes. She dotes on them. And what a great vehicle a show like that is for a woman who loves finery.

Still, however perfectly tailored to your liking the role is, show business does have some drawbacks. It was only 4 p.m. and Ann was already having dinner.

"I have to eat early to make the theater," she said. "But tonight it's earlier than usual. I have to go to the doctor before the show."

She threw out her back while on stage the night before and had to have it "put back in place" before theater time the next evening. It was so painful that she had to take a taxi to the doctor's office just around the corner from her apartment. Yet later that same night she would be dancing up a storm on stage in glittering costumes she loves to wear.

Her favorite designer is Bill Haire of Victoria Royal.

"It was funny how I met him," she said. "But as a result of our meeting, I have bought practically his whole current collection."

Before opening here in "Mame," Ann had an engagement in Chicago which included some very special social events during her stay.

"I took some of my very best clothes and furs," she recalled. "Diors, Balenciagas and a blue embroidered evening coat and dress costume.

"When I came back to my hotel after a performance, I found everything had been stolen, even my luggage."

She couldn't replace the Diors and Balenciagas but the store in Los Angeles knew where the blue dress and coat came from—a manufacturer called Victoria Royal in New York. And through them she met the designer, Bill Haire. She asked him to replace the ensemble and, although he was finished cutting, he sold her the sample from the firm's library.

Bill does only cocktail and evening clothes. "But," said Ann, "when I'm not working I'm a night girl. I like to go out and have fun. And his clothes seem to have been designed just for me.

"Every time I wear his clothes on television, people call to ask who designed them."

Bill Haire's designs, after the original piece has been made by him in New York, are executed in Honk Kong.

Fashion News

NEW YORK (AP) — Never noted for normalcy, designer Giorgio di Sant'Angelo shunned the standard showroom setting for his spring collection and instead sent his models scampering down he red-carpeted staircase of the National Democratic Club.

There was no particular reason for selecting that site, but it did provide an odd contrast Thursday night.

Downstairs in the dining room, conservatively dressed, white-haired men discussed the stock market, politics and the World Series-winning New York Mets.

Upstairs in the grand ballroom, pianist Peter Duchin and pop art collector Ethel Scull applauded and cried "Bravo!" as models with eye makeup stretching to their ears displayed a series of clothes designed for stares, not style.

To the accompaniment of chamber music played on a gilt piano, the models wandered among the white marble pillars in abbreviaed minidresses, panne velvet pants suits, enormous shawls that revealed almost-bare bosoms and knit dresses that looked like sweaters.

Almost every outfit was cinched at the waist with a leather belt, wide in front, narrow in back. Many of the creations were topped with turbans, tied to one side like those of Greek soldiers. When the models didn't wear hats, they pulled their hair to one side to create the same effect.

There were a few fashions that could be called conservative by Sant'Angelo's standards. Most followed the trend of the peasant dress with ruffled aprons and pinafores topping layers and layers of petticoats.

Other wearable items included a quilted skirt in flower print and a floor-length shirt dress of silver panne velvet.

Sant'Angelo apparently was enchanted with feathers. He made muffs out of coq feathers, lined triangular fur shawls with ostrich feathers and even sent some models down the stairs carrying stuffed birds on their arms.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - A Florida state representative says some glasses can be dangerous for lady auto drivers.

"Unfortunately, fashion has supplied us with those big, fat, jeweled glasses which blot out a whole hunk of peripheral vision," said Rep. Cecil Bothwell, R-Orlando. "They're bad at intersections."

Bothwell has proposed a bill that would make it a violation for any driver to wear glasses with rims three-eights of an inch in width.

Of the 36 individuals who have been president of the United States, President Nixon is the 22nd who was a veteran of military service. The World Almanac notes. He is the fifth consecutive president to have worn a military uniform.

Fenwick Roars Again

THE MOUSE ON WALL STREET. By Leonard Wibberley. Morrow. $4.95.

Wibberley's frolicsome, farcical foolishness about the dizzy domain of Grand Fenwick is here again.

In case you didn't read "The Mouse That Roared" or its sequels, Grand Fenwick is a duchy on the French border, three by five miles in size, population 5,000, with a fine, medieval attitude toward life.

This time Grand Fenwick finds itself in a dilemma. In the treaty negotiated after the little nation had defeated the United States (with long bows), there was a provision that Grand Fenwick could license an American firm to make chewing gum flavored with its wine, and collect 40 per cent of the profits. For years that provision was dormant.

But a sudden chewing gum boom results in a check for a million dollars for the little country. Horrible inflation sets in. Desperate measures are needed. Then comes a check for $10 million. The only solution is to get rid of the money.

So the duchess plays the stock market in the United States. Where else could one lose millions in a hurry? Unfortunately she has the innocent gift of winning instead of losing.

This nonsense gives the author a free wheeling opportunity to lampoon mergers, corporate raiders, conglomerates, tax concessions and the whole financial world.

The whole affair winds up with an international financial crisis, which Grand Fenwick settles very neatly with a brilliant disregard for the green stuff. An amusing romp, full of giggles.

Big 8 Battles Resume Saturday

By LEW FERGUSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oklahoma begins defense of its Big Eight co-championship Saturday, while Missouri and Kansas State, the two teams given good chances of dethroning the Sooners, tread warily into upset situations.

Oklahoma, which suffered its first loss, 27-17, at Texas last week, entertains Colorado, 3-1, at Norman, Okla.

Missouri, unbeaten and untied in four games and ranked sixth nationally, also is at home against Oklahoma State, a team which already has sprung two upsets.

Kansas State plays at home against Iowa State, a team the Wildcats have not been able to defeat the past four years.

Kansas travels to Nebraska in a battle of teams trying to climb back into title contention after dropping their league openers.

Oklahoma, explosive offensively with Jack Mildren, Steve Owens and Roy Bell, leads the conference in offense with 34 points and 400 yards a game, while the Buffaloes are tops on defense, allowing only 217 per game, and are tied for second in scoring defense, 12 points a game.

"Their defensive play right now is completely outstanding," Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "We must run the ball well to be successful, and I really don't think our offense is strong enough to stick the ball down Colorado's throat."

That game matches Owens and Colorado's Bob Anderson, two of the Big Eight's biggest offensive stars. Owens is averaging 138.7 yards rushing and Anderson 112.3.

Missouri's Joe Moore is outdueling both of them with his 141.5-yard average. However, the Tigers have injury problems at defensive ackle and offensive guard which give heart to upset-minded Oklahoma State. The Cowboys have conquered Houston and Texas Tech.

K-State quarterback Lynn Dickey, who got his start against Iowa State las year when he came off the bench and passed for 248 yards, will find the Cyclones tough defensively. However, Iowa State has had an erratic offense.

Kansas Coach Pepper Rodgers sounded the theme song of both his Jayhawks and Nebraka when he said, "I don't expect the winner of the Big Eight to go undefeated. Just because Nebraska lost its first game won't eliminate them from the race, or us, either."

Meetings Set

COLUMBIA — Basketball rules interpretation meetings for high school basketball officials and coaches will be held at 31 different sites throughout Missouri starting next Monday.

The meetings, which are held each as a part of the MSHSAA program for training officials, will start with an all- day session for interpreters at the MSHSAA Office on Sunday, October 19. Jack W. Miles, Assistant Executive Secretary of the MSHSAA and in charge of the program for state officials, will conduct the meeting for interpreters. Discussion of the 1969- 70 basketball rules changes and officiating mechanics are to be on the agenda. All rules interpreters will attend the session after which they will conduct meetings at various sites assigned to them across the state.

Missouri high schools follow the rules as adopted by the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada.

All basketball officials registered with the MSHSAA and head basketball coaches are required to attend one of the above meetings. Assistant baseketball coaches, players, and other interested persons are also urged to attend.

Bill Arment will be the interpreter at meetings Oct. 27th at Cape Girardeau (SEMSC Gym); Kennett Oct. 21st; New Madrid Oct. 29th and Poplar Bluff Oct. 30th. Each of the meetings will be held at the high school, except where otherwise stated and will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Big Red Battle Vikings Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The mighty Minnesota Vikings, pacing the NFL's Central Division, pay their first-ever regular- season call to St. Louis when they tangle with the Cardinals at Busch Memorial Stadium on Sunday afternoon.

Kickoff is set for 1:05 p.m.

The Big Red and the Vikings have met only twice in the regular season, both times in he Twin Cities and both times with the Cardinals coming out on top, 56-14 in 1963 and 34-28 in 1967

The clubs met in a pre-season game in Memphis during August and the Vikings scored a 41-13 victory. The Vikings lost their opener to the Giants, 24-23, but then have scored three straight victories, pounding the Colts, 52-14; the Packers, 19-7; and the Bears, 31-0. Minnesota and Green Bay share the division lead with 3-1 marks.

St. Louis, dropping a 33-17 verdict to the Washington Redskins last Sunday, now is 2-2 for the season nd a game behind the Giants and Brown, who are tied at 3-1.

The Marching Leathernecks of Western Illinois University will make their debut in the halftime program. The band, from Macomb, Ill., is under the direction of Dr. Harry Haines.

After Sunday's game, the Big Red goes to Cleveland for a head- to-head Century Division confrontation, then returns home to meet the Saints and Giants in the first two weeks of November.

Adventures With A Modern Day Time Machine

THE HOUSE ON THE STRAND. By Daphne du MAURIER. Doubleday. $5.95.

There is an old fashioned adventure story with modern overtones in this book.

Richard, the novel's hero and narrator, is a former editor who is living in an old house in Cornwall, England, borrowed from his long-time friend Magnus, a biophysicist.

It happens that Magnus has been tinkering in his spare time with hallucinogenic drugs, and he induces Richard to try them. The potions take Richard back to the early 14th century — a variation on the "time machine" device — where he finds himself a ghost-like observer of an ancient world.

Each time he takes a drug "trip" his contact is Roger, the steward of a manor house, and Roger is in the midst of a great deal of plotting, skullduggery and cloak-and-dagger costume drama.

While Richard is shuttling back and forth between the present and the past, he endeavors to keep his wife from learning what he is up to, and that leads to some complications.

This is sheer entertainment, a story for the story's sake, and it is deftly done.

TALENTED TOED Henry Brown of the Missouri University fighting Tigers grid team, got in the Mizzou record - books last week when he booted his seventh field- goal of the season. He surpassed Bill Bates' one- season high of six field goals (in 13 attempts) set in 1965.

Tigers Look For Air Attack

COLUMBIA — In nine football meetings with Ol' Mizzou since 1960, Oklahoma State never has scored more than 10 points against the Tigers in any single encounter.

The Cowboys under new saddle- boss Floyd Gass may need to upgrade that offensive performance sharply here Saturday afternoon if they hope to close out this decade of MU-OSU football warfare on a winning upbeat.

Missouri (4-0) is averaging 28 points a game so far in victories over Air Force, Illinois, Michigan and Nebraska. The Pokes are (2-1) and averaging right at 14 points for three starts -- two of them upset wins over Houston and Texas Tech. OSU dropped its opener to Arkansas, 39-0.

Oklahoma State is apt to treat a Memorial Stadium turnout of 54,000 to a sky-filled extravaganza. With quarterback Bob Cutburth calling the shots, the Stillwater crowd has averaged some 33 passes each time out.

"They may throw 50 Saturday," predicts Clay Cooper, the Tigers' secondary coach whose three- deep cordon of Butch Davis, Dennis Poppe and George Fountain must stalk Orange and Black interlopers.

Cornhusker quarterbacks Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson provided a pretty taxing workout last week -- collaborating for 42 throws. As a result, tiger ground defenses were not actually probed to any extent -- the Huskers amassing only 36 rushing yards.

More of the same could be in prospect. Cutburth, a 197-pound senior, throws often in the direction of Hermann Eben and Tom Dearinger. A year ago, Mizzou defenders filched four of 34 OSU aerials -- three of the steals by Roger Wehrli.

Mizzou's unbeaten Tigers, fifth- ranked by U.P.I., and sixth - ranked by the A.P., will chip-away at Cowboy defenses-- ith workhorse Joe Moore on the prowl. The 198- pound Bengal junior has a four- game rushing pick- up of 566 yards -- but can expect the Cowboys' tough tackle tandem of John Ward and John Little to be keying his every move.

Jim Harrison will be Moore's backup man, and the 238-pound junior may also spell Ron McBride at fullback. Mizzou's slotback position was twice-holted in the Nebraska game -- when John Staggers slightly dislocated a shoulder, and place-kicker Henry Brown dislocated a thumb.

Staggers, the splendid kick-return threat, should be ready for the Cowboys -- while Brown's injury, obviously, will not affect his status as No. 1 field- goal kicker. Brown's seventh field goal of the year put the rangy senior from Middleton, Pa., in the Mizzou record- books-- for it surpassed Bill Bates' one- season high of six field goals (in 13 attempts) set in 1965.

The Missourians could come up short- handed at one tackle station Saturday. Definitely out for three weeks anyway is John Cowan, the promising sophomore from Springfield, Mo., who started the first three games for leg- sore Rocky Wallace. Cowan has an ankle sprain.

Wallace, too, is questionable again. The quick 219- pound senior lasted less than a half against Nebraska before retiring with what was later diagnosed as a retraction of scar tissue in the area of his original pulled hamstring muscle. His readiness this week is problematical-- and this latest recurrence could cancel out altogether his 1969 availability.

Sophomore Steve Mizer is the probable replacement.

Mizzou leads Oklahoma State 13-2 in the all- time rivalry-- with Coach Dan Devine's record against the Pokes 8-1. His '64 team lost here, 10-7.

Three Rivers Opens Season November 18th

POPLAR BLUFF — "The progress being made by the Raider basketball team has been very gratifying." That is the way Coach Bob Cradic felt about his chargers just after viewing a game type scrimmage that was highly competitive.

The Raiders will see action this year against one of the toughest scheduled to be found in the junior college ranks with the likes of Moberly, Crowder, Paducah, Meramec, Forest Park, Mineral Area, and St. Louis Baptist being perennially strong.

Three Rivers will be going with ten freshmen and one sophomore transfer from Arkansas State.

The only returning letterman, Glenn Williamson from Bloomfield, Missouri, has withdrawn from school. Glenn was a contender for the starting center position at the time he left the team and his absence has left the Raiders with only one center for the first semester.

This vacancy should be filled however, when Lewis Little, a 6'6" transfer from Lincoln University becomes eligible at the change of semesters in January. Little competed for Howardville in high school.

"We are literally beginning anew this season and this has slowed us up to a certain extent, but any inexperience we have is certainly overshadowed by the teams great desire " commented Coach Cradic. We were very disorganized the first few weeks of practice, but we are now beginning to function as a unit, we are finally beginning to know a little about where everyone is supposed to be, and most of all, we now know about what we expect from each other," Cradic stated. "If these young men continue working with the same determination they have shown in the last two weeks we should certainly win our share of ball games. We are two deep at every position and this has helped to make our practices competitive.

As a matter of fact it has been impossible to divide the boys up into two teams and have one completely dominate the other."

The Raiders have just completed their fifth week of practice and they open at home in the Poplar Bluff High School gymnasium November 18th against Southern Baptist of Walnut Ridge, Arkansas.

Weaver Predicts Pennant For Baltimore In 1970

BALTIMORE (AP) — The World Series dream of the Baltimore Orioles has turned into a nightmare. Or, even worse.

"Even in a nightmare you couldn't dream up the things that happened to us," outfielder Frank Robinson said. "Hollywood wouldn't believe it, either."

If any of the Orioles do suffer mid-winter insomnia, they'll no doubt envision the New York Mets making fantastic catches or standing in the way of line drives.

Time after time the Mets choked off budding Baltimore rallies with their gloves as they won the World Series with four consecutive victories after losing the opener.

By actual count, the Orioles slammed four outfield line drives in the second game and five infield shots either on the ground or in the air, with shortstop Bud Harrelson making a diving catch of Don Buford's liner.

But that was only the warmup of bigger things. In the next three games, catches by the Amazin' Mets included:

—Two sensational grabs in game No. 2 by center fielder Tommie Agee, robbing Ellie Hendricks and Paul Blair of extra base hits while preventing five Baltimore runs from scoring.

—A sliding catch by left fielder Cleon Jones on a drive by Dave Johnson in game No. 3, and a diving grab by right fielder Ron Swoboda on a two-out liner by Brooks Robinson in the ninth inning with two runners aboard.

The catch by Swoboda, not known for his defensive prowess, seemed implausible. The Orioles also thought it was a bad play.

"He should have played it safe," Robinson said. "The runner was going to score from third base anyway, to tie the score. Had the ball gotten past, we would have won to even the Series 2-2."

But the catch was made, and the Mets are the new champions of baseball.

"We hit so many shots," Johnson sighed after the game.

"You can't beat magic," reserve outfielder Curt Motton said, echoing the oft-repeated description of the Mets, who overcame 100-1 preseason odds and won everything in sight.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, who won the American League pennant in his first full season as a major league skipper, disagreed.

"The Mets aren't lucky and they don't need gremlins to win," he said. "No other pitching staff contained us as well during the year."

The Orioles, who compiled a .265 team batting average while winning 109 regular season games, hit .146 in the Series and scored only nine runs on 23 hits. Three of the runs were batted in by pitchers.

"We won all those games, but we didn't win the one which counted," Frank Robinson said. "I still feel we have the best club, position by position, but the Mets have a fine team. This is proof of what can happen in a short series."

"The Mets beat the best damn ball club in sight," Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn told Weaver after the final game.

A crowd of 4,000 which welcomed the Orioles home at Friendship International Airport Thursday night, carried signs which proclaimed: "We're still No. 1," "Win or lose, Orioles we love you," and "You're still No. 1 with us."

"We're going to win the pennant again next year," Weaver said. "I didn't make that kind of prediction for 1969, but I am now for next year. And, I hope the Mets win again. We'd like another shot at them."

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes Sports Editor

Just when we think we've hit upon a rather easy week boom... upsets by East Prairie and Steele knock the prop out from under us and Gideon joins the group as we had another six of nine weeks for a season total of 34 winners in 48 attempts.

This week should be the toughest of the season, since top division clashes are scheduled as well as a number of top non-divisional bouts set.

So for you who wonder... here's the way this week's action looks from here.

CAPE GIRARDEAU AT POPLAR BLUFF — State wide ratings have the Tigers favored but we'll go against those machines as we've said all season that the Mules are the team to beat for the division honors and this one game might settle the matter as Cape's been our second choice. The game pits a stout defense against a potent offense and undefeated records on the part of both squads. Homecoming ceremonies add to the Mules effort as well as two weeks of preparation. From here it looks like Poplar Bluff 14, Cape 10.

EAST PRAIRIE AT CARUTHERSVILLE -- Now what way would you go if the Eagles had just the week before upset the division leading Dexter Bearcats... Perhaps with East Prairie, but we'll have to be shown another performance on defense like last week before the Eagles can gain our entire confidence. We'll say... Caruthersville 21, East Prairie 7. Show us Eagles... just one more time.

CHARLESTON AT KENNETT -- A breather finally... The Bluejays have been flying high since its loss to Sikeston and will continue to do so in this battle. Charleston 28, Kennett 0.

SIKESTON AT DEXTER -- In recent years this has been sort of a run- away for the Bulldogs, but not this campaign. Last week's loss is still ringing in the Bearcats ears and the desire to upset the Dogs adds even more. It'll be close, but Sikeston 28, Dexter 15.

PORTAGEVILLE AT GIDEON -- This game will decide the New Madrid county grid champions for 1969. Both have had their proud moments and bad one's too. It's hard to tell, but we see the visitors all the way. Portageville 21, Gideon 7. HAyti AT MALDEN — The mighty Green Wave will add victory number six in the battle. Malden moves closer and closer toward the Southern Division title and tunes up in this battle for next week's clash with Chaffee, the division leader. The Wave proved last week that when Don Clayton's stopped it makes little difference as the Wave send out other speedy men toward the goal lines. It looks like... Malden 28, Hayti 0.

ILLMO- SCOTT CITY at Potosi -- After being deprived of sole possession of the Bootheel Division crown, the Rams are down and will stay that way in this battle and a look at its schedule it looks like the remainder of the season. Potosi 20, I-SC 7.

STEELE AT LUXORA, ARK. -- This Bootheel teams that go into Arkansas have really played havock with our calls this season... this one is little different, but we'll say ... Steele 14, Luxora 7.

PERRYVILLE AT VALLE -- This Saturday night encounter should only be good for the Pirates fourth loss of the season. We see... Valle 28, Perryville 14.

Listen to the "Jelly Belly Show" on KSIM at 5 p.m. each day.

NOW HEAR THIS--- I hereby challenge Mike Shain to a public weigh-in... Shain, you can choose the site and I'll bring the scales... lets just see who's the heaviest...

Portageville Planning Homecoming

PORTAGEVILLE— The 1969 homecoming at Portageville high school is taking shape. In making the arrangements for this Homecoming, the student council had to make major decisions.

The council came up with the following ideas: The band, will be the 1932 Ballroom Blues, from Jonesboro, Ark., which is a seven man band with sounds ranging from Summertime, to a James Brown routine.

The dance will be held in the Portageville high school cafeteria Oct. 31, which is Halloween night. Much thought and discussion have been given to the idea of changing the date, but it was all to no avail.

Tradition was broken when the Council selected a corsage of three carnations with the placement of three letters on them, these being P.H.S. The original flower was the white mum with only the letter P on it. The corsage will still have blue and white streamers and a gold colored football dangling from it.

One of the major problems that the council had to overcome was the placement of the outdoor back drop and Homecoming Queen's throne. Every previous year this was placed at the front east end of the football bleachers. During the past summer, Portageville High School acquired the funds o build a fence between the bleachers and the football field, thus blocking the area for the setting. The student council quickly solved this problem by placing the backdrop on the south side of the fence at the front east end of the football bleachers.

There has been no official announcement of Homecoming royalty, but the Queen and her court have already been chosen by the members of the football team.

Due to the physical and mental labor of the council and its sponsor, G. R. Williams, this year's Homecoming will be the most unique ever experienced at Portageville High School.

Bid to Oust Blackwell Gains Backer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, has joined majority leader A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, in a request for a Democratic caucus of Senate members to nominate a replacement for Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, as president pro tem.

"My request is the result of recent actions of the president pro tem which threaten to irreparably divide the Missouri House and Senate," Southern wrote to the caucus chairman, Sen. T.D. McNeal, D-St. Louis.

"Senator Blackwell's reign has done little but bring discredit on the Missouri Senate. He is totally unresponsive to the needs of Missouri citizens, to our party platform, to the will of the majority of the Democratic members and to the program of the Democratic administration."

Blackwell's ouster and replacement as president pro tem would have to wait until the Senate is in session, perhaps next spring. He is selected by the majority party but is elected finally by the full Senate membership and the latter action cannot take place unless the Legislature is convened.

Blackwell said he was sure the governor would not be so unwise as to call a special session for the sole purpose of giving the Senate a chance to dump him from office. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Blackwell have been unrelenting foes on the issue of tax increases.

The controversial president pro tem said he didn't care if he lost the job. Blackwell said he had taken it only because he thought he could help reduce the administration's control over the Legislature.

He said he would push his campaign for a voter referendum of the $106 million income tax increase enacted by the September special session.

Danforth Calls For Payment of Fee Shortage

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth Thursday demanded that Mrs. Shirley Butters, national Democratic committeewoman, pay the state $42,062.24 he said she owes as a former operator of the Department of Revenue's Bowling Green fee office.

If the state treasurer hasn't received the money by Thursday, Oct. 23, he said in a certified letter to Mrs. Butters, "We will take whatever action is indicated to protect the interests of the state."

The total includes amounts covered by an audit conducted by state Auditor Haskell Holman, plus an additional amount uncovered by a department check of records for later dates than the auditor's accounting.

The attorney general also called upon the American Insurance Co. of Kansas City to meet as much of the obligation as the bond issued to her will cover.

The demanded amount includes a total of $39,651.45 covered by the official audit.

"Furthermore," the attorney general's letter said, "the records of the department of revenue reveal, as of Oct. 8, 1969, an additional difference in the motor vehicle, sales tax and use tax accounts of $935.04, and an additional difference in the operators' license account of $1,476.50. Further increases in these accounts can be expected as people present to the Department of Revenue receipts bearing the validation stamp of your office.

"On behalf of the state of Missouri we hereby demand that you as the fee agent in charge of the Bowling Green office pay immediately to the treasurer of the state of Missouri the sum of $42,062.24 to balance (as of Oct. 8, 1969) the total receipts of the Bowling Green motor vehicle license office and the total deposits made with the Farmers Bank of Bowling Green."

In charge of the case for the attorney general is D. Brook Bartlett, assistant attorney general.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Credit cards will be accepted by Kentucky's state resort parks. Gov. Louie B. Nunn said an arrangement has been made with one of the biggest credit card dispensers for lodging and meals.

Canada, Waters, And Oil

The Canadian Parliament is scheduled to reconvene on Wednesday (Oct. 22).

Canada and the United States live in a peculiar relationship. It has been called a symbiosis. According to WEBSTER'S this is a form of living together where the association is "advantageous, or often necessary, to one or both, and not harmful to either." But strains do develop.

Premier Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada has promised to give a full statement on sovereignty of Arctic waters after Parliament comes back from recess on Oct. 22. In a preliminary statement to the House of Commons last May 22, Trudeau said: "Canada's sovereignty over its Arctic regions, including the islands of the Arctic archipelago, is well established and . . . there is no dispute concerning this matter."

A mild dispute was not long in developing. At a Canadian - United States ministerial meeting in June, U. S. Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson challenged any idea that Canadian sovereignty extended beyond the three mile limit around the Arctic islands.

Trudeau, a former professor of law, has been very careful not to let popular feeling push him into a hasty all-embracing statement on sovereignty. He did say last May: "Canada's sovereign rights over the continental shelf in the Arctic flow from Canada's sovereignty over the adjacent lands, and again there is no dispute on this matter." The Montreal GAZETTE later chipped in with an editorial explaining Canada's historical rights to the entire area: "Canada inherited the whole Archipelago from Britain in 1880 and has maintained definite presence there since."

Trudeau has pointed out that the law of the sea "is a complex subject," and that sovereignty or the right of innocent passage in the waters between the islands "would have to be settled not on an arbitrary basis but with due regard for established principles of international law." He noted in May that the Canadian government would welcome the voyage of the supertanker S. S. MANHATTAN in its attempt to open a Northwest Passage.

The Canadian government's claims for the continental shelf and sealanes are important because they may hold new deposits of oil. One of the big questions about the Canadian position now developing is whether Premier Trudeau will apply the "straight base lines system" of sovereignty to the Arctic waters.

This system, developed in 1964, means drawing a line from the furthermost to the innermost point of shorelines and claiming sovereignty over the entire body of water in between. This contrasts with the usual practice of following the contour of the shoreline and declaring sovereignty over a three-mile area. Trudeau is expected to clarify the Canadian position in the upcoming statement.

There is another consideration. The Montreal STAR explained: "If a tanker sank or was damaged, the effect on northern waters could be disastrous." The newspaper notes that zoologists already have warned that oil development work has damaged the offshore waters and tundra in which Arctic wild life maintains a precarious experience. Other papers -- and opposition politicians -- have expressed the same concern over a disastrous oil spill. Premier Trudeau has on his desk a problem of national unity, conservation and pride.

When baking apple pie, grate several tablespoons of sharp cheddar cheese into the pie dough before rolling it out. The cheese helps to make a crisp and delicious crust, and complements the flavor of apples.

Criminal Justice System Surveyed

COLUMBIA - Missouri law enforcement officials are being surveyed by the University of Missouri - Columbia to obtain suggestions for improving the criminal justice system and to determine their needs to help bring about the improvement.

The two-pronged attack includes a questionnaire survey mailed this week to over 600 police chiefs, sheriffs, marshals, and constables. Within a month trained field research interviewers will discuss matters personally with many of the officers and others.

The survey is being directed by Dr. John Galliher, assistant professor of sociology at UMC. Mrs. Jean Everling, supervisor of field research for the University, will train and supervise the interviewers, who will be in the field Oct. 30 after a three-day training session on the Columbia campus.

The study is being financed by a grant of $30,966 from the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, with funds stemming from the 1968 federal bill providing [illegible] state governments under the crime - in - the - streets elimination program.

Mrs. Everling supervises a trained staff of interviewers for similar studies over the state by sociologists, rural sociologists, and agricultural economists at UMC. Specific training for this program will be offered them Oct. 27-29 before they go into the field.

Questionnaires -- 30 of which were returned within 48 hours of mailing -- to the 600 law enforcement officials this week inquire about what their agencies need, size of their departments, what personnel needs are, what physical facilities such as space and vehicles are available, and how much training and equipment they have. They also asked what is their major problem, such as felonies, traffic, or public relations, and what the state can do to help solve these problems.

Information obtained from the questionnaires and the personal interviews will be compiled for study and analysis.

The Missouri Highway Patrol Says
BE A BETTER DRIVER EVERY DAY

Sensing The News

THE ORDEAL OF A JUDGE

It is the right and dusty of the U.S. Senate to give careful scrutiny to nominations for the federal bench, especially in view of past disclosures concerning the activities and associations of former Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas. But there is a difference between careful scrutiny and an unconscionable smear, and the latter is the treatment that Senate liberals reserved for Justice Clement F. Haynsworth, Jr., President Nixon's second appointee to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge Haynsworth, who has been on the Fourth U.S. Circuit of Appeals for 12 years, is noted for his integrity and dignity. He proved the former and displayed the latter during the long and often ugly hearings in which he was abused.

The abuse directed at Judge Haynsworth was only partly directed at the main himself. As the judge no doubt understood, his critics in and out of the Senate were really trying to hit at the region where he was raised and, beyond that, at the type of distinguished, fair- minded, successful man he is.

Judge Haynsworth is a model of the type of American who has built up and maintainted the traditions of the American judiciary at its best. He is a man of manners and good breeding, calm and restrained in his judgments, an accomplished lawyer, a success in private business -- in short, respectable, dignified and not given to participating in rough and tumble political crusaders. This is the type of man good citizens should want on the Supreme Court of the United States. This is the type of man who hasn't been favored in recent years.

The opponents of Judge Haynsworth were enraged because they weren't getting another rigid - minded political partisan to succeed Abe Fortas.

The union leaders and militants have had their way for years. They saw the Warren Court packed with men who were personally committed to political dogmas and specified protest organizations. Big Unionism and the advocates of social revolution don't want judges on the Supreme Court; they want advocates of liberal causes. For too long they have had their way.

The unions got their man on the court when Arthur Goldberg, former special counsel of the AFL- CIO, was appointed to the Supreme Court. The NAACP got its political reward when Thurgood Marshall, its general counsel, received a place on the nation's highest judicial body.

The activist judges brought the Supreme Court into disrepute. Americans as a whole saw in the Warren Court a political arm of those forces attempting a massive political reconstruction of the United States. Thus President Nixon sought out men who would serve on the Supreme Court as judges, not partisans. The liberals weren't happy with the President's nomination of Judge Warren Burger as Chief Justice, but they didn't feel themselves strong enough to attack him.

In the case of Judge Haynsworth, the liberals decided they could hang him with his regional background-- the fact that he was a Southerner. It seems that a liberal can forgive someone for almost anything except being a Southerner who hasn't turned his back on the South and on the U.S. Constitution as written.

The liberals further concluded that they could use against the judge the fact that he was a man who had shown ability in his personal business dealings, as though success were a crime and not a sign of achievement.

The people in this country who are out to destroy free enterprise and constitutional government hate the Haynsworths of the land, the men who have real achievements to their credit and who have made a mark in life.

It is not hard to imagine what kind of country we would have if all judges in future were men drawn from the ranks of political propagandists and militant agitation groups -- and men of proven competence and personal substance were excluded from the judicary. The free enterprise system would meet a sudden death in the courts. And that, of course is one of the chief goals of the New Left agitators and their liberal sympathizers in the Congress and the liberal news media.

What really lies behind the attacks on Judge Haynsworth is hatred of the capitalism system and of the constitutional system that nourishes it for the benefit of future generations. Judge Haynsworth is simply a convenient target for those who are determined to prevent the federal courts from returning to the strict impartiality that the founding fathers intended the courts would uphold and practice.

GREENHOUSE
PAUL FLOWERS

Dear Greenhouse:

When I read in Greenhouse Gerald Baggetts' description of a trip to town made by two people whom he called AB and CD, he seemed to admire AB's interest in the minute details of everyday life in the country and to decry the lack of interest in the same details shown by CD.

But, sir, he should not judge CD too harshly. A classmate of mine 50-odd years ago was just such a character. He was shy with beautiful girls and they all looked alike to him -- just female girls. He chewed Star-Navy plug in private and masticated his cud like an old milkcow while his more alert classmates rolled their own with Stud granulated and left an aroma that the officer of the day could smell three stories distant.

When we visited the local battlefield, we visioned an enactment of the original skirmish in living color exactly as it was fought in '63, while all he saw were the cannonballs and battle debris scattered about the old field. The present locale in full bloom was out of his vision and beyond his ken.

He could never see the forest for the trees and their darn dogs raised so much racket barking that he could not hear the music of hounds' mouths on a hot trail. He made the squad but not the team -- the signals chant immobilized him. He tried out for the band and finally was assigned to toting the big bass drum on his back for the drummer boy.

The beautiful antebellum homes on Church Street on the way to town were just some more houses to him. When the coin and feather fell at the same rate of speed in the vacuum tube it was but another problem in physics, really nothing phenomenal. He was a nice boy and everyone liked him. He made good grades, but so what? He came here to learn and nothing diverted his attention.

It made no difference to him if it was the first bugler who blew tattoo with gusto and taps like it was a sonata or if it was the second who could never get a tune to fit the notes. They were just bugle calls to distract a boy anyhow. The neighboring fields of blue sugar cane being harvested and the juice cooked in open pan evaporators looked like hard labor to him but he would condescend to chew up a few joints of cane and taste the finished syrup.

But hold your pity all; don't shed a tear for him. Down through the years I lost track of him and only recently learned that when he finished his education, he migrated to another state, got himself involved in politics and served very successfully as governor of his adopted state.

-- W. W. Busby

Ah, so, Brother Busby.

I've known governors, senators, mayors, councilmen and other holders of public office like that. They had everything except imagination and vision. They live by bread alone. Maybe they never live at all.

A fellow can be a whiz at kissing babies, employing purple eloquence to thunder golden promises, hiking taxes, loading the public pay roll with charming bureaucrats, and playing ducks and drakes with seven or even eight digit fiscal matters, but is life any better for that kind of genius?

For me you can tell the progress genius to throttle the bulldozer for a decade, and leave the world to darkness and to me.

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The "temple" for a "pagan wedding ceremony" was a grassy park and the 150 long- haired witnesses clustered in a circle, some sitting on the ground.

The bride and bridegroom sat cross- legged on the grass, facing other inside the circle Sunday.

The minister, wearing a beard and short- sleeved shirt, hunkered on his heels beside them. A heavy aroma of incense wafted about.

Exchanging the vows were Bob Lucas, 19, operator of the Mother Love Free shop, and a 17- year -old girl who wants to be known only as "Blue" because that color is her aura.

The minister was Ravi Kristin, identified as pastor of the Church of All Worlds of St. Louis. He said the ceremony was a "combination of Hindu, pagan and Polynesian wedding styles."

Kristin lighted wood shavings in earthenware and asked the couple to circle the fire once. Then he wound a thread around the couple.

The couple exchanged beads and each tied a cloth on the other's wrist. They shared a bread crumb and put the remains in the fire.

Kristin pronounced them united in the cosmic spirit, and they exchanged kisses.

Instead of a wedding cake, the couple served tomato soup to guests.

THE BULLDOG BARKER

SERVING THE STUDENTS, FACULTY AND STAFF OF SIKESTON HIGH SCHOOL SINCE 1936.

Students Should Set Goals For Remainder Of Year

AS THE FIRST QUARTER NEARS its end, students should begin to settle down and concentrate on doing their best during the remainder of the school year. By this time, everyone is accustomed to their new subjects and teachers.

The first quarter is usually an adjustment period for most students. The transition from freshman to sophomore, sophomore to juniors, and junior to senior is a change which requires a particular amount of adjustment. With each high grade level, more electives become available and the student must decide what direction to take in selecting his courses.

SHS offers a varied selection of subjects to suit the need of each individual. Vocational courses are available in which students can learn a trade, no matter in waht field their interest lies. For the college-minded student, courses are offered to prepare him for almost any area of study in which he may choose to enter upon reaching college.

Sophomores and freshmen are just beginning their high school careers. Because of this, students may be tempted to ease their way through classes in order to give more time to extra-curricular activities.

This method may seem more appealing at times, but each student must realize that high school is no party; it is rather a serious and important time of life when one must prepare for the future.

Although the juniors can look forward to another year in which to raise their grades, time is growing shorter for them also. By the junior year, most students should be decided as what field they want to enter. After this decision is made, each student has a clearer picture of what direction to take in choosing his courses.

For the seniors, this final year is extremely important, whether the future includes college or obtaining a job. There can be no more putting off until next year, for in a year's time, the present class of seniors will be well on their way to becoming contributing members of society. Therefore, the grades earned this year may "tell the tale" as far as future success is concerned.

This is the time of the school year when each student should set forth specific goals that he wishes to attain during the remainder of the year. It is well to remember that time passes more quickly than one realizes, especially when there is so much to accomplish.

Neal, Lee, Ford, Sauls Selected 'Peppy Peppers'

Senior Linda Neal, junior Susan Lee, sophomore Linda Ford, and freshman Karen Sauls were selected by the Red Pepper officers at the football game last Friday evening as the "peppiest girls."

Enthusiasm and vitality are the two qualities required of the girls in the Red Peppers, and these were the qualities that these four girls displayed when the Bulldogs defeated the Kennett Indians.

"All Red Peppers should use these four girls as an example when reciting cheers at the sport contests, said vice-cayenne Ellen Fisher.

Each week the officers select one girl from each of the four classes to be recognized for their enthusiasm in Bulldog Barker.

Council Members Discuss Induction, New Walkway

The regular weekly session of the student council met Monday afternoon after school. Council members prepared for the monthly homeroom meeting scheduled for Tuesday.

The main topic of discussion was the student council induction ceremony which took place Wednesday during third period. Members discussed procedure and ceremony of the induction and also the purpose and meaning of being a student council representative.

Also discussed at the meeting were some possible uses of student council funds. Among the suggestions was one concerning the landscaping of the cubes in front of the library. Some students were hoping that possibly some flowers or other greenery could be placed there. A few students remarked they were tired of looking at weeds.

Another good suggestion was one concerning the construction of a walkway cover from the math and science building to the field house. Many boys remarked that the long walk from the field house to the main walkway can be a problem in rainy or bad weather. The walkway could also serve another purpose by making it easier on students who park their cars in the student parking lot.

Student council president Don Littleton remarked that participation among students concern taking buses to out-of-town games was poor. He suggested that if students were really that interested intaking the buses, they should make sure enough students were in favor of it.

Matthews Talks To Student Body

Charles D. Matthews, IV, secretary of the board of education, was the guest speaker for the annual induction of the student council in an assembly Wednesday morning.

Mr. Matthews' talk to the students centered around the theme of peace. Since Wednesday was recognized as Moratorium Day, he reminded the students of a similar day in 1869.

He said, "The nation is only as strong as the ones who make it their home. We must work for peace for our entire lives. Peace comes with a desire to speak, learn, and listen . . ."

Principal Roger Sherman opened the assembly by inducting the new student council officers. President Don Littleton then inducted the other members of the council.

Vice-president Dan Hazel presented the oath of loyalty for the entire student body.

Social studies instructor Carl Wright introduced the speaker for the morning.

Editor's Lament

Getting out this paper is no panic.
If we print jokes, people say we are silly.
If we don't, they say we're too serious.
If we stick close to the office all day,
We ought to be around hunting material.
If we go out and try to hustle,
We ought to be on the job in the office.
If we don't print contributions,
We don't appreciate genius!
If we don't the paper is filled with junk!
If we clip things from other papers,
We are too lazy to write them for ourselves.
If we don't, we are stuck on our own stuff.
Now, like as not, some guy will say
We swiped this from some other paper--
WE DID!

Roving Reporter

Roving reporter came up with an unusual and seemingly simple question, "What is your favorite color, and why?"

Individual colors represent individual character traits.

If a person's favorite color is blue, perhaps he likes cold weather, or likes its simplicity. If red suits his fancy, he may be a strong-headed person, violent at times, or it may remind him of the rose, its warth and love.

Green may represent growth and life, while yellow may depict a sunny disposition.

These are some of the favorite colors of Sikeston high school students--

Kathy Britt--yellow; it's sunny.

Rachel Ardrey--blue; reminds me of the sky.

Dan Maloney--blue; reminds me of cold.

Carla Colwick--olive green; it goes with everything.

Nathan Kerr--green; money.

Lee Ann Braswell--yellow; I'm color blind and it's the only one I can see.

Joel Allen--blue; reminds me of the sky.

Debbie Launius--blue; it's light and airy.

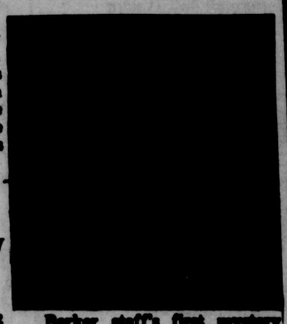

Billy Marcum--green; reminds me of a new car.

Barb Faulkner--blue; blue eyes and it makes me happy.

Alan McClellan-blue; simplicity.

Common sense in an uncommon degree is what the world calls wisdom.

Guess Who?

Barker staff's first mystery guests for the 1969-70 school year are a senior girl and a sophomore boy who are brother and sister. They reside on North Kingshighway.

Miss X is 18 years old and is active in many different organizations at SHS. She participates in band, choir, and moderne club. She is also a member of Red Peppers, Girl Scouts National Honor society, and she is treasurer for her class.

Mr. X is 15 years old and plays baritone in the marching band. He is also an officer in the biology club. Mr. X can be seen riding to school each morning surrounded by senior girls.

Do you know them?

Ralph Waldo Emerson was told by a member of a religious cult that the world would come to an end in about ten days. "Well," replied Emerson, "we doubt will get on very well without it."

SHS Seniors Will Take Ohio Psych Wednesday

Seniors of Sikeston high school will take the Ohio Psychological Test next Wednesday morning.

This examination is given each year to the graduating classes of all Missouri high schools.

This is a scholastic aptitude test and is a part of the state-wide testing program.

Testing will begin at 8:30 under the direction of the counselors and last approximately two hours.

Ohio Psychological scores are used to determine the aptitude of the student to do college work, and many of the colleges and universities use scores on this test as well as the high school record to select recipients of the curator awards to the University of Missouri and scholarships to Southeast Missouri State College.

Questions on the test will be for the most part word associations and comprehension of reading material. "Ohio Psych" is said to measure "how well you can think."

Linguistic factors in the test yield a superior indication of ability to do the required work in most high school and college courses.

This test also furnishes a score of reading ability that is an additional advantage in scholastic diagnosis and educational counseling.

Students of Mrs. Jack Yount's, Gordon Beaver's and Edmundo Deshon's homerooms will convene in the west common room for the test.

Students of W. W. Wilkison's, Miss Jean Love's, and Mrs. Marian Tenkhoff's homerooms will meet in the east common room.

Students from Mrs. Brian Snider's, Mrs. Tim Garner's, Mrs. Tenkhoff's, Mrs. Chuck Grant's, and Mrs. Hemba Young's homerooms will take the test in the library.

'Books On Exhibit' Opens Monday In SHS Library

400 Titles Comprise Display; Available For Five Days

"Exhibit of new books for high school readers" will be displayed in the Sikeston high school library next week, October 20-24.

Librarian Frederick W. Huff said, "This exhibit will permit each faculty person and student to review 400 of the best books published in recent months."

The 400 titles comprising the exhibit are covered by annotated, curriculum-related, fully indexed catalogues which provide immediate access to the books of one's interest--in general or particular.

The collection is broken down into 18 main and more than 65 sub-classifications.

BOOKS ON EXHIBIT, who supplies the exhibit, is an national exhibiting-promotional enterprise, now in its 18th year.

Its free service to schools, showing currently selected titles of some 65 important juvenile, trade and university press imprints, has been praised over the years for the efficiency and time-saving organization with which it meets a general need.

"For teachers, for interested citizens and students--for all who want to keep abreast of the best in this basic section of instructional materials--the exhibit is an event not to be missed," said Mr. Huff.

The exhibit will open each day at 7:30 and close each day except Friday when it will close at 1:30.

Homerooms Construct Plans For Homecoming

Sikeston's traditional homecoming dance is scheduled for Friday, Oct. 31, in the cafetorium. The dance will follow the Sikeston-Jackson football game. Time of the dance is slated from 9:30 to 11:30 p.m.

Arrangements for the dance are under the direction of sophomore homeroom teachers. Each homeroom has been assigned specific duties for the dance.

Miss Lucile Mount's, Mrs. Catherine Matthew's, and Mrs. Tom Wilkins' homerooms are responsible for the decorations for the dance.

In charge of the music for the dance is John Reuber's homeroom.

Mrs. Mildred Robinson's and Miss Almaretta Sidwell's homerooms are responsible for the crowning ceremony, queen's flowers, and the crown.

Responsible for clean-up after the dancy are Murray Sullivan's, Lewis McClenden's, and Jack Mabery's homerooms.

Robert Walker's and Mrs. Joan Brixey's homerooms are responsible for the stage, the announcer, the cars, and the parade around the football field.

Some senior girl will again wear the crown of Sikeston homecoming queen. The football squad will select the girl and her two attendants. In keeping with tradition, the names of the winners will be kept a secret until after the homecoming game.

All Sikeston high school alumni are invited to attend the dance, along with parents and faculty.

Football Team Honored

50 years ago
October 17, 1919

Miss Corinne McGee entertained Friday evening in honor of the victorious football team of Sikeston High. Quite a crowd of high school students and teachers enjoyed Miss McGee's hospitality and expressed their willingness to come again soon.

Quite a crowd journed to Charleston last Friday to see the "Bull Dogs" trim our old time rivels the Blue Jays, by the decisive score of 34 to 7. It was a hardfought fame marred by costly fumbles by both teams.

A merry party of little girls and boys were invited Saturday afternoon to the home of Clarence Felker to help celebrate the birthday of Ruth Inex. The little ones present were: Lois Haw Tanner, Mary Lou and Mildred McCoy, Olga Matthews, Sam Bowman, Jr., Elizabeth Taylor, Ina Meldrum, Billie and Paul David Malone, Rex and Clarke Smith, Rebecca Baker, Lucille Baker, Billie Fox, Billie Tanner, Anne Beck, Imogene Albritton, Virgin Swain, Virginia Randol and Wootsen Inez Hollingsworth.

Mrs. Charity Adams of Benton has recently purcheased from Dr. O. E. Kendal, the property on Front street, now occupied by Wm. Robinson and will soon come to make this her home. Mrs. Adams is the mother of Mrs. Ad Goetting of this city.

If You Were the Judge

Car Makers Not Responsible for Speed

Ziggy was a zanny. Despite the fact he was pusning 60, he dressed and acted like a college freshman.

Even the new automobile he bought was a real gasser. He was told by the salesman that it could do over 100 miles per hour and, with his beanie sitting atop his head, he promptly set out to test it. Before long, Ziggy found himself zipping along at 115 miles per hour. He also found, to his chagrin, that he couldn't stop in time to avoid striking the rear of Hilda's car as it was stopped in front of him for a red traffic signal.

Crawling out of the wreckage, Hilda not only sued zanny Ziggy for her injuries, but she sued the manufacturer of his automobile to boot.

"To make an automobile that can go over 100 miles per hour," she complained in court, "is pure negligence. What's more, the manufacturer compounded its carelessness by encouraging purchasers to go that fast by advertising the speed capabilities of the car. Had Ziggy not have had all that power," concluded Hilda, "and had he not been encouraged to use it, the accident would never have happened."

"We're in the space age now," retorted the manufacturer. "Power is the thing. While we may provide it, how it's used isn't our problem."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the manufacturer liable for providing zanny Ziggy with a high powered car?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the manufacturer of an automobile cannot be held accountable because a car is driven at an illegal rate of speed, that a manufacturer is no more required to make an auto mobile that's incapable of illegal use than is the manufacturer of a gun is required to make a pistol that can't kill anyone.

MANAGING DIRECTOR
Missouri Delta
Community Hospital
Sikeston, Missouri.

Esteemed friend:

According to the Sikeston DAILY STANDARD the Dr. Sarno family is establishing a fund at your Hospital for use in purchasing additional equipment and instruments and those wishing to make a donation toward this fund should send it to the Hospital.

Dr. Sarno was the attending physician and personal friend of the Robert N and Ellis M. Stewart family in whom they had an unusual faith and confidence. It was my pleasure to know him. Your Hospital and staff have been most considerate of my sisters and to Bob Stewart, your courtesies and attentions unusual. Your nursing staff have extended them warm and sincere considerations. In honor of Dr. Sarno and my deceased sister Grace and in gratitude for your consideration of Bob and my sister Bernice, my wife and I wish to enclose a check as a donation to the Dr. Samuel M. Sarno Fund.

Best wishes,
Mr. and Mrs. C. D. Hicks.

The Prayer from The Upper Room

When a man's ways please the Lord, he maketh even his enemies to be at peace with him. (Proverbs 16:7)

PRAYER: Dear Father, because Thou hast forgiven us, help us to forgive one another. May we never allow smoldering resentments and anger to crowd out the fresh air of peace and forgiveness. Amen.

Mail Box

Mr. Charles L. Blanton
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Charlie:

I read your news item of the request by a delegation from the Sunset community for a fair housing ordinance at the last City Council meeting. This letter is not meant as a criticism of anyone but rather to offer supportive public opinion to the councilmen as they consider this request.

I believe there is a sizeable and growing group of Sikeston citizens who believe that a fair housing ordinance is the right action to take. Perhaps this is the time for us to stand up and be counted, re-assuring the councilmen of support.

Fair housing is already a federal law, but because it is still highly controversial with emotional dimensions, the black community is fearful of acceptance when individuals seek to move out into the larger community of better houses. White people are fearful that a racially integrated neighborhood will lessen property values. Researching the facts on a national scale shows this to be myth, but a fair housing ordinance might alleviate the fears on both sides. Other progressive Missouri cities have found it wise and practical to do this. Namely-- Independence, Springfield, Jefferson City, Liberty and Kirkwood.

True, such action would expose the hypocrites (all of us in our various condescending and patronizing ways as well as the outright white racists). Perhaps "the world is pushing for a showdown" and saying: "Christian, Make a decision. Are you or aren't you for brotherhood- where all men are honored and respected as children of God and accepted as human beings with equal rights?" I believe there are many people in Sikeston who feel a fair housing ordinance is consistent with moral integrity and Christian conscience.

Many feel that such action is important, not to legalize rights, for this is already done, but to minimize suspicion and overt hostility. Leaders in the Sunset community have voiced their disapproval of violence, burning, and revolutionary destructive methods. They came to the Council as responsible citizens seeking within the framework of law and order to exercise rights already given them. It is really reasonable to reply, "Wait awhile," as long as public opinion keeps them locked within their ghetto? Is it fair to say, "Work to improve yourself" and then refuse them a better home life when this is financially possible? Recovery, Inc. is a success in spite of its pitifully small public support, but it does not nearly satisfy the needs.

One would have to be blind and deaf not to be aware that an increasingly larger segment of white Sikestonians are overcoming bias and prejudice; that an increasingly larger segment of black Sikestonians are financially ready to upgrade the quality of their homes; that communications between blacks and whites are more open and understanding today than ever before; and that all of us want to affect social progress peaceably within the democratic progress.

The time seems ripe to assure our City Council of a firm base of support in the passage of a fair housing ordinance.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Keith Collins

Merit Scholars Invited to Visit M.U. Campus

COLUMBIA — Missouri's 300 national merit scholars have been invited to the University of Missouri Nov. 7-8 to see campus facilities and learn about programs and opportunities for students and to be guests at the Oklahoma - Missouri football game.

The merit scholarship visit is a part of UMC's effort to encourage the exceptional high school student who has demonstrated superior capability and academic achievement to continue his higher education in this state. The percentage which has selected UMC has been climbing steadily, more than doubling in the last school year.

"We want the merit scholars to know that we are interested in them as future students and want to acquaint them with our ability to meet their special needs on our campus," according to the associate dean of agriculture, Homer C. Folks, chairman of the UMC National Merit Scholarship committee.

The opening day of the conference-- which coincides with high school holidays because of the Missouri State Teachers Association convention-- will enable the visiting high school students to become acquainted with the campus and its programs. Those who desire will be given overnight accommodations, and a bloc of seats has been reserved for them at the football game, which otherwise is sold out.

Initial response has indicated that most of the students will remain overnight. In fact, of the first 97 replies 81 of the students indicated they would remain for the football game.

A similar program was conducted on the campus last year for Merit Scholars interested in programs of the College of Agriculture, with he agriculture faculty providing overnight accommodations for some 30 students. The heavy response this year may result in use of available dormitory facilities or perhaps assistance from fraternities and sororities to house the visitors.

Nixon Sees Inflation Easing

Slowing Pains Likely

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon asserted Friday the nation is "on the road to recovery from the disease of runaway prices" dut cautioned that the effort to cool off the economy is bound to produce "slowing pains."

In an address prepared for live radio broadcast to the nation, Nixon disclosed he will send a letter appealing for wage-price restraint to a cross section of business and labor leaders during the weekend.

The letter, he said, would ask them "to make their own future plans on the basis of working and selling in a country that is not fooling about slowing down the rise of the cost of living."

Declaring a confidence that the administration's antiinflation policies are "beginning to take hold," Nixon told citizens:

"You can make your plans on the basis that price rises are going to be slowing down."

The deliberate cooling off of the economy, however, inevitably will mean that some businesses will suffer from sluggish sales, he said.

"As we gently, but firmly, apply the brakes," said the President, "we are going to experience some 'slowing pains.' Like growing pains, these are a healthy development, but painful nevertheless."

Nixon promised the administration would view economic adjustments with compassion and would keep a close watch on the unemployment rate.

"There are some who say that a high rate of unemployment cannot be avoided," he added. "I do not agree. In our levelling-off process, we intend to do everything we can to resist increases in unemployment."

Presidential counselor Arthur F. Burns, who is to become the new head of the Federal Reserve Board, said in advance of the broadcast that Nixon was going to talk to his hearers "in a way that we hope will enable them to get the message."

He and Paul W. McCracken, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, told a White House neas conference definite indications of weakening inflation are beginning to appear.

Administration restraints "are pretty clearly now beginning to show some bite," McCracken said. Burns vowed "we will not budge" from restraints until they work.

While the President was preparing to appeal to consumers, his key economic advisers were trying to enlist the support of the nation's top industrialists for the administration policies.

Treasury Secretary David M. Kennedy, McCracken and Burns were among those attending a closed meeting of the Business Council at Hot Springs, Va. Indications were the administration would make its first direct appeal to big business to help slow the inflationary spiral.

Kennedy told the business leaders the administration would not ease anti-inflation measures prematurely, for fear of sparking a new round of inflation.

"We must and shall resist the all-too tempting route of moving into an expansionary posture too soon.

"That route would only lead America into a dismal and self-defeating cycle of stagnation and inflation."

Government sources also said they expect a similar appeal would be made to organized labor for restraint in wage demands.

Although administration spokesmen said their policies are doing the job of slowing inflation, the feeling was not unanimous on Capitol Hill.

Forty-four House Democrats called on the President Thursday to mount "a genuine war on inflation," including possible consumer credit controls. And they asked him to withdraw his objections to wage-price guideposts.

McCracken and Burns spoke after two days of conferences culminating with a meeting between Nixon and the chairman and Republican members of the Senate and House appropriations and finance committes.

Nixon made clear to the congressmen he might veto federal pay raise legislation—and also the tax reform bill if it would contribute to a budget deficit.

He also appealed to Congress to extend the income tax surcharge until next June at 5 per cent, half its current figure.

Car Kills Woman in Neelyville

Patsy Jane Haynes of Corning, Ark., believed to be in her 30s, was struck and killed by a 1967 Ford, driven by Cloyce Gene Pierce, 31, Corning, the state patrol reported.

The accident occurred Wednesday at 7:55 p.m. on route 67 in Neelyville.

The woman, a hitchhiker was picked up by a motorist. At the intersection of highways 67 and 142 was let out of the car.

The patrol stated she apparently crossed the highway into the path of the car. The driver was not charged.

Her body was taken to the Cotrell Funeral Home in Poplar Bluff, awaiting identification.

McCormack Aide Draws Suspension

WASHINGTON (AP) — The top aide of House Speaker John W. McCormack has been suspended following a charge he interceded in a stock case with the Securities and Exchange Commission.

Martin Sweig, 46, who has been on McCormack's staff for 24 years, was named in an SEC suit as having arranged a meeting last May at which the SEC was asked to lift a ban on the sale of Parvin-Dohrmann Co. stock.

The suit says Parvin-Dohrmann paid $50,000 to Nathan Voloshen, a friend of McCormack's for whom it said Sweig arranged the meeting. A week later the SEC ban against sale of the stock was lifted.

McCormack, D-Mass., said in a statement that he was unaware of Sweig's alleged involvement in the SEC proceedings until earlier this week. The statement was handed out to reporters and the 76-year-old speaker was said to be out of town.

"Martin Sweig admits an error of judgment but denies any improper conduct as a member of my staff," said the statement. "He has worked for me for over 24 years. He has never given me reason to doubt his loyalty or integrity.

"I will be shocked if the trust and responsibility I have placed in him has been abused. He assures me that it has not."

McCormack said Sweig has been suspended from his $36,000 a year job without pay "until all questions concerning this matter have been resolved."

The SEC suit, filed Thursday in New York, charged fraudulent activities by a group of Parvin-Dohrmann stockholders in gaining control of the company last year.

Maryville Wins Plant

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Union Carbide Co. will build a new dry battery manufacturing plant at Maryville.

The company's plans were announced here today by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and the state Department of Commerce and Industrial Development. They received the word by telephone from Birny Mason Jr., chairman of the board of Union Carbide.

The plant will contain 167,000 square feet of working space, will be built by the company on land purchased a couple years ago and will be completed late in 1970.

The new plant, which will be operated by the corporation's Consumer Products Division, will manufacture Eveready batteries for flashlights, transistor radios and general appliances.

James M. Rehfield, president of the division, said "the Missouri location was selected because of its manufacturing and distributing advantages and the attractiveness of the Maryville community."

Burns Choice to Replace Martin

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon announced today he will nominate White House aide Arthur F. Burns to replace William McChesney Martin Jr. as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board.

Burns, a 65-year-old economist born in Austria, is to take over the top job in the nation's central bank next Jan. 31 when Martin's term expires.

Inquest Battle Renews

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — The attorneys for the parents of Mary Jo Kopechne insisted today "there is no good cause or urgent necessity" for an autopsy on her body. Disturbing her grave "would be grossly offensive."

Attorney Joseph F. Flanagan filed an answer to an amended petition by Dist. Atty. Edmond Dinis, New Bedford, Mass., who has asked Common Pleas Judge Bernard C. Brominski to approve exhumation for an autopsy.

The hearing on the petition is scheduled to begin next Monday at 10 a.m.

The 28-year-old secretary was killed on he night of July 18 when a car operated by Sen. Edward M. Kennedy plunged off a narrow bridge and overturned in a pond on Chapaquiddick Island off the Massachusets coast. Her death was ruled by drowning, without an autopsy.

Her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph A. Kopechne of Berkeley Heights, N.J., have vigorously opposed disturbing her grave.

Flanagan said further that "the cause of death has been clearly

Flanagan, in his eight-page answer said that if the judge should order exhumation it would be "prejudicial to the wishes, sensitivities, health and well-being" of the parents.

Soviet Trawler Fired on, Hit

SAIGON (AP) — A South Vietnamese navy vessel fired on and hit a Soviet trawler off the coast of South Vietnam on Thursday but the trawler escaped with smoke pouring from her forward section, official sources reported.

The informants said today the trawler was intercepted by a South Vietnamese naval patrol boat inside South Vietnam's 12-mile territorial waters limit south of Da Nang. The patrol boat asked the trawler to identify herself and when she refused the Vietnamese fired a warning shot, the sources added.

When the trawler continued on her course, the Vietnamese craft fired another shot but this time aimed to hit and did, the sources said. Nevertheless, the trawler headed into open sea.

The NDC will perfect a statewide organization by approving a constitution and electing permanent officers. Units already have formed in Kansas City, St. Louis, St. Joseph, Kirksville, Columbia and Jefferson City.

MPES Says State Fiscal Outlook Dim

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Public Expenditure Survey painted a gloomy fiscal picture for Missouri's government today.

In a detailed study the taxpayers organization said:

-If the forces of Sen. Earl Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, are successful in their effort to refer to the voters at the November 1970 general election the income tax increase law enacted last month, Missouri's treasury would be short about $66 million for the 1970-71 budget. That would reflect the loss of the tax revenues from the time it would become effective if the voters approved it in November- probably a year.

-If the voters rejected the increase in Nobember 1970, the entire $106 million hoped for from the tax boost would be lost for the 1970- 71 budget, a dilemma that could only be averted by some other stopgap tax increase measure - perhaps raising the sales tax from 3 cents on a dollar sale to 4 cents.

-And even if the income tax became effective Jan. 1 because the referendum campaign failed, Missouri still would be an estimated $102 million short for the 1971-72 budget.

The survey recommended "that the legislature in its budget session next year re- examine expenditures and commitments affecting the 1970-71 fiscal year."

It made no recommendations on how multi- million dollar savings could be achieved.

2 More Soviets Land

MOSCOW (AP) — The second spaceship in the Soviet Union's troika mission landed safely today, returning three more cosmonauts to earth and leaving only two aloft in Soyuz 8.

Moscow Radio said Soyuz 7, carrying Anatoly Filipchenko, Vladislav Volkov and Viktor Gorbatko, landed in the Soviet Union. It was in orbit nearly five days.

Still flying in space aboard Soyuz 8 were veteran cosmonauts Vladimir Shatalov and Alexei Yeliseyev.

The other ship in this biggest-ever mission, Soyuz, 6, was brought to earth Thursday with Georgy Shonin and Valery Kubasov aboard.

Soyuz 8 is expected to land Saturday.

Soyuz 7 landed 96 miles northwest of Karaganda, in Kazakhstan, only 15 miles from the site where Soyuz 6 came down. The broadcast said search parties reached the spacecraft quickly and the three cosmonauts "feel excellent."

The mission of Soyuz 7 was declared "successfully completed," as Soyuz 6's flight had been 24 hours earlier.

The only pioneering aspect of the flight announced so far has been the testing by Soyuz 6 of new automatic welding equipment to determine the feasibility of its use in the construction in space of a large orbiting station or platform, the goal of the current Soviet space program.

Jobless Rate in Area Holds Steady in Fall

By CHARLES BRADY

One sign that the government's anti-inflation fight is starting to take effect was the jump in national unemployment rate from 3.6 per cent to 4 per cent last month.

Residents of the four-county area of Stoddard, Scott, Mississippi, and New Madrid need not be concerned, according to Leon O. Garnett, manager of the Sikeston office of the Missouri Division of Employment Security.

Although the rate of unemployment in the four-county area was five per cent a year ago in September and Scott County was four per cent last year in September, it has remained the same while the national rate increased four-tenths of a per cent.

"One of the major reasons for this stability," Garnett stated, "is that the farm industry tends to reduce unemployment during the months of September and October. The fall months are usually the lighter months of unemployment in this area due to the harvest and all."

To show the activity of the office in Sikeston, in the four county area in September, there were 542 new worker applications. This was a slight increase from August when there were 509 applications. The majority of these came from Scott county. At the same time last year, there were 443 new applications.

Garnett said that temporary unemployment is a little heavier than normal. In September 845 were temporarily laid off work.

The majority of the unemployed, according to Kenneth Story, Employment Service Supervisor, are "industrial production workers and laborers." In answer to what could be done about reducing the rate of unemployment, both Garnett and Story replied "jobs. More jobs."

Garnett said "the various industries coming in to this area and the businesses beginning operations have affected unemployment. This results in an increase in new work applications."

The active file of those unemployed at the end of September were 1,615. These are the ones that have been to the office to see about a job within the past 60 days. Garnett also said that although figures were not available for September the number of initial claims for unemployment insurance in September of 1968 totaled 390. He said the number this year would be slightly higher.

Garnett stated that the Missouri Division of Employment Security in Sikeston have made an increase in job placements in 1969 with 231 placements. At the same time last year, 107 placements were made. In 1969, 71 were referred to jobs outside the immediate area as compared to only one in 1968. Garnett went on to say that "in 1968, there were 158 job openings in this office. At the same time this year, there are 291 job openings here."

At the fiscal year beginning July 1968 to June 1969, the total new work applications received at the Sikeston office was 5,075. Of this number, 222 were handicapped, 477 received job counseling service, and 1,207 received specific aptitude testing. Of those being tested, 85 took the proficiency test. These were clerical workers.

During this fiscal year from July, 1968, to June, 1969, a total of 1,333 non-agricultural job placements were made. Of this number, 153 were short time placements. Seventy-one of the non-agricultural placements were handicapped. The office placed 553 youths and 24 boys went to the job corps.

Garnett said that there are special services given to employers and prospective employees. One such service is the aptitude testing program. This program assists employers in selecting workers for the job at hand.

A program for the benefit of prospective employees is an operation that has been underway for several years under the manpower development and training act. Under this program, the department of education and the Division of Employment Security work together to select and recruit people who need to be trained. The Division of Employment Security determines the field and then refers the people to the department of education where they receive job training. The people then are referred to the Division of Employment Security for job placement. Garnett said that in 1970, training of approximately 225 has been approved.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Sikeston's people are proud of her. They are proud of her for they have built and invested her qualities deep within. They have invested in her future because they know she is their future.

Another time for investment has come, however. Will you go to the polls Oct. 21 and vote yes to build a building to house a factory of Keystone Consolidated Inc.? This is a question that corporate planners other than those of Keystone are awaiting an answer. It is essential these people are shown that Sikeston is willing to do its part for progress. The Oct. 21 vote needs resounding approval, such as a 20 to 1 majority, to insure that everyone knows Sikeston is ready for progress.

We, the people, in Sikeston already know the answer. This explains the progress of our schools, hospital, city planning, etc. But go to the polls Oct. 21 and vote to let everyone know Sikeston is a synonym for the word progress.

STORE PRIZES SUBJECT TO NEW ADVERTISING RULES

Advertising of games of chance used to promote supermarket and service station sales will hereafter have to declare the odds of winning and other information intended to give the customer a better idea of his chances.

The new Federal Trade Commission trade regulation rule, effective in two months, touches all advertising. The exact number of prizes in each category and the odds (for prizes of $25 or more) must be updated in ads of games running more than 30 days.

The geographic area, number of outlets and termination date of the game must also be disclosed in the ads.

Details required may drive the so-called "sweepstakes" ads out of the broadcast media and there is no question that there will be a shake-up in some wild promotion plans which have plagued the public.

THE BITE OF FALL

It's not that we don't think fall is a lovely, exciting season. We enjoy, just as much as the next person, the flaming foliage, the back-to-school challenge, the warm glow of Thanksgiving and the foot-stomping thrill of a soaring forward pass.

Yet fall still has a moment of harsh truth, a biting snap of realization, to it. It usually comes about now, too, in midfall, when all the summer suits and dresses go off to the cleaners for the last time, or when you discover, suddenly, that you need your headlights and heater on while driving to work on a chilled morning. Summer, even Indian summer, is gone. And lying ahead, unexpectedly, it seems, are all those struggles with heavy boots, mittens for the four-year-old and snow on the windshield.

It's at that moment - even though you've read how cold weather builds hardy character and know how contrasting seasons spice a variety of life - when you shudder silently and wonder if approaching winter really needs to be all that spicy.

THE RIGHT TO BE LET ALONE

A camerman charged with harassment for taking pictures of Mrs. Aristotle Onassis and her son, John F. Kennedy, Jr., bicycling in New York's Central Park faces a hearing in criminal court on Thursday (Oct. 16).

The right to be alone -- and to be let alone -- is being challenged everywhere today. Mr. Justice Louis Brandeis once held the right to be alone "the most comprehensive of rights, and the right most valued by civilized men."

The right of privacy, which is the usual legal phrase, seems to come most in question when people who are most public try to become private. Two examples spring to mind. Jackie Onassis has had two dubious experiences with photographers recently, and at least one of them has been haled into court.

Christine Keeler, the call girl in the scandal that forced John Profumo to retire as Britain's Minister of War in 1963, is publishing the rather FANNY HILL details of her six career in NEWS OF THE WORLD, a London gossip sheet. Profumo has been working hard, entirely privately, in a social settlement in London's East End. Britain's law of libel is pretty tough, but there is no guarantee of privacy. Lord Devlin, retiring chairman of Britain's Press Council, told newspapermen that Britain's press ought to police itself and not try to profit from a man's "sins, follies and misfortunes."

Talleyrand wrote: "The private life of a citizen ought to be within walls." Chief Justice Alton B. Parker of the New York Court of Appeals held: "A man has a right to pass through this world, if he wills, without having his picture published, his business enterprises discussed, his successful experiments written up for the benefit of others, or his eccentricities commented upon, whether in handbills, circulars, catalogues, newspapers or periodicals."

The first important statement on the right of privacy was an article in the HARVARD LAW REVIEW of Dec. 15, 1890, in which Brandeis and Prof. Samuel D. Warren explored and defended the individual's right to decide what facts about himself might be kept to himself.

Invasions of privacy, of course, take various forms, from electronic and other tupes of eavesdropping to mail taps and government surveillance of Americans abroad. Editorial Research Reports observed in April 1966: "The question now is how to reconcile the legitimate interests of society in recording personal information on individuals with the individual's right to privacy. Recent court opinions have established some new guidelines, but the uncharted area between public and private privilege remains large."

Alan F. Westin of Columbia University, a law-oriented social historian, reported on a four-year study by a special committee of the New York City Bar Association. He wrote: "The right to speak, to publish, to worship, and to associate cannot survive in the modern age of scientific penetration of house, auto, office, and meeting room unless the courts and public mores install a curtain of law and practice to replace the walls and doors that have been swept away by the new instruments of surveillance."

Probably no court or moral action can protect individuals from univited memoirs such as MY LIFE WITH JACQUELINE KENNEDY by a secretary, Mary Barelli Gallagher. A recent spate of Hollywood biographies and autobiographies has wounded many. But there probably is no remedy, and some good may come of it. If memory serves, Dr. Johnson didn't authorize Boswell.

What is it liked to be chronically handicapped?

Some six million Americans can give an answer to this question, with varying degrees of desperation or hope, depending on how they managed to overcome their disability.

When the family breadwinner or the family homemaker is struck by disability, the effects spread beyond the individual to encompass entire households. Then many million more people may feel its ravages.

To understand what it's like, put yourself hypothetically in a wheelchair, or between crutches, or strap on heavy leg braces. Experience the futility of trooping around, in and out of places of employment, listening to the monotony of excuses which pass for refusals.

Try to navigate the steps at entrances to office buildings, court houses, libraries, churches, eating places, theaters. Try to reach the public telephone, or refresh yourself from the thoughtlessly designed water fountain.

Watch the public transit vehicles go by, inaccessible to your wheelchair. Feel yourself ignominiously hoisted into an airplane by a fork-lift while hundreds of impatient passengers watch. Search the want ads for an apartment that can accomodate your needs. See what it's like to try in function in an environment that is molded in perfect anatomical specimens.

Yet this is the world where, day in and day out, men and women with physical limitations try to make their mark. The majority of them do, and do it well. Others could succeed with understanding and increased opportunities. They need all of us to help them help themselves.

During this observance of National Employ the Physically Handicapped Week, let us keep in mind the needs of handicapped people and act with more thoughtfulness when the occasion presents itself. If we are in a position to consider such a person for a job opening, let's be sure we give him fair consideration, judging his ability and not his disability. If we have a chance to make the environment more liveable for persons with functional limitations, let's remember that in so doing, all of us benefit.

NEW YORK (AP) — There are seven basic problems that lead to marital conflict, a New Jersey marriage counselor reports: children, sex, alcohol, inlaws, religion, housekeeping and finances.

Although she seems to have covered the subject pretty well, she has failed to touch on the basic problem in our household: who is going to run the wastebasket concession.

It's easier to sneak narcotics through customs than to sneak anything out of our house into the garbage can.

My husband has a distinct reverence for age. I'm not talking merely of his fondness for me but of his refusal to throw out anything that has been in his possession even briefly.

If I discard something when it is fairly new only a small reprimand ensues. But if anything has been around as long as a week it takes on all the value of a rare antique and my misdemeanor becomes a felony.

"You're not throwing out our dear little baby's teething ring," my hoarding husband says in horror. "Why, we've had that for years!"

Indeed we have. Since our dear little baby is now in college and chewing on her fingernails rather than a small plastic circle, I doubt if there's much of a future for that particular item. But it's small, so I retrieve it from the trash with only a minimum of argument.

However, the 20-year-old television set is big enough to fight for—or against. It has a seveninch screen but is bulkier than modern ones with screens more than twice that size. For 15 years it's been stuffed into the garage, along with trunks of books, electric train sets from my husband's boyhood, cans of dried-up paint and rusty nails.

"But this was one of the first TVs made," the family collector insists. "It's a museum piece."

So is the watch with no hands, no crystal and no stem his parents gave him when he graduated from junior high. So is the red metal dump truck with most of the paint scratched off he had as a child. So is the broadbrimmed hat from his Boy Scout days. But to date the Smithsonian Institution hasn't expressed much interest.

He calls it sentiment. I call it clutter.

One day, when he was safely at work, I decided to make a dent in the old newspapers nestled on closet shelves along with old scrapbooks and letters he wrote his parents from camp.

I had just gotten down some 50 pounds worth chronicling such events as the start of World War II when in he walked, home early for the first time in months. "What," he demanded accusingly, "do you have those out for?"

I thought fast. "I've developed a sudden interest in ancient history," I said. "I was going to look through these and see if they really told it like it was."

He's keeping an even sharper eye on the wastebasket these days. The only way I'll be able to get rid of those papers is to chew them up and swallow them.

"You Sure Have a Green Thumb!"

FARMER'S WIDOW

THIS LITTLE STORY deals with a salesman and the rural maiden, so be warned. But it is slightly different.

It so happened that two salesmen traveling together had car trouble on a lonely country road and it was necessary to stay at the first farmhouse for the night.

Instead of finding the farmer, they discovered that he had died the year before, leaving a beautiful young widow. She welcomed them in and asked that they use the spare room upstairs.

The next morning she prepared a fine breakfast and they went on their way. Five months later they were discussing that particular night and one asked the other:

"Say, you didn't by chance sneak downstairs that night, did you?"

"Yeah," he replied. "I did."

"Well, you didn't by any chance tell her you were me, did you?"

"Yes, I did. I'm sorry."

"Well, don't be. I just got a letter from her attorney today. She died last week and left me her farm."

For years two monks lived together in concord and amity. The monotony of their life finally moved one to say, "Let us get out of the groove of our humdrum round of daily tasks and do something different-let us do as the world does."

Having lived the sequestered life so long, the other monk inquired, "What does the world without do?"

"Well, for one thing," stated the first monk, "the world quarrels. See that stone? Let us place it between us, and each one say, 'The stone is mine!' "

Willing to accommodate his friend, the second monk picked up the stone and placed it between them, then exclaimed, "The stone is mine!"

Pausing for reflection, and feeling the compulsion of their years of friendship, the monk who suggested the quarrel concluded, "Well, brother, if the stone is thine, keep it"

And there was no quarrel.

Have you ever wished to know the secret of a famous person's success? Usually successful people are just ordinary human beings with this exception: They work a little longer and a little harder than most of us. They let neither discouragement nor doubt nor seeming failure stand in the way of their ultimate success.

You will find this particularly true should you visit Hollywood and become acquainted with some of the people you have come to know through the parts they portray on the screen. Warm-hearted, co-operative, bouyant, loyal men and women you would find most of them to be.

To accomplish anything at all, says one who has accomplished, a person must combine a sense of humor with discouragement and elation. Says another, "I have noticed that usually the right door has a way of appearing when you are really ready to open it."

A FRIEND IN NEED — IS A FRIEND INDEED

Friendliness begins with you---and friendliness is caught---not taught. To have friends, we must be friendly. We must remember that everyone needs our friendship-the young, the old, the sick, the saint, the sinner, the rich, the poor, the black, the white, the yellow, the red and all. Especially, do we need to be a real friend to the ones in trouble. Just one smile, kind word or a listening ear might mean the destiny of a troubled teenager. The world is in real need of composed, self-controlled, peaceful parents as well as leaders in our cities, schools and government.

Webster says: One attached to another by esteem, respect and affection. In other words how many people hold you in esteem with respect and affection? Ponder this question and resolve to be a better friend to one and all.

NO END TO PATRIOTISM

Patriotism is not a suit of clothing to be worn for a season and then discarded. The standards of patriotism are no different today from what they were a century or two centuries ago.

The courage, valor and sacrifice of the Founders of Freedom gave birth to our Declaration of Independence and Federal Constitution. They stood for and fought for the primacy of the individual under a free government and laws. That is the heritage they handed down to us.

Patriotism is love of country so strong and enduring that men will make the supreme sacrifice in defense of their country and their freedom. The curtain is never rung down on the patriot's role. There is always work for him to do, and to him it is the most joyous and rewarding work in the world.

A key factor in his self-appointed task is sharing his patriotism with others. This may be accomplished in many ways. One of the most satisfying and effective ways is writing letters to the editor on freedom subjects. Through such letters the patriot can reach a tremendous audience of newspaper readers. He will discover for himself the lasting truth of the old adage, "A drop of ink makes millions think."

Short, crisp letters to the editor, each on a single topic, are among the best weapons the patriot has in the fight to save freedom in America. In today's world there is certainly no lack of subjects for the right-minded. Letters to the editor give the patriot an opportunity th let his patriotism and culture show. HLH

Washington - Merry Go - Round

By Jack Anderson

TOKYO--President Nixon's brave attempt ot reduce the U. S. build-up in the far east has got the brass hats more agitated than any event since the military pay raise was turned down.

From Thailand to Taiwan, the Generals are firing off hot memos left and right to fight off the cutbacks. The bureaucratic bombardment, apparently, has shaken the Pentagon.

This column has examined the secret exchange, for example, between the Pentagon and the military advosory group on Taiwan. The advisors are commanded by peppery Maj. Gen. R. G. Ciccolella, who believes passionatedly that the U. S. should provide Chiang Kai-shek with more, not less, military aid.

If our nuclear bases on Okinawa are dismantled to appease the Japanese, for instance, Ciccolella wants to relocate them on Taiwan. Old Chiang has already constructed some handy runways, storage tanks and other facilities as an encouragement. This, however, would upset the Chinese Communists with whom Nixon is trying to restore a dialogue.

Ciccolella has also protested vigorously against trimming U. S. support for Chiang's armed forces. From the secret crossfire between Ciccolella's group and the Pentagon, there are excerpts which illustrate the opposition Nixon is encountering in the far east:

CHIANG'S OBJECTIVE

The Pentagon contends that Chiang's forces "are more than adequate" for defending Taiwan and the offshore islands against a Chinese Communist amphibious assault.

However, their "primary objective," claims the Pentagon, "has been to regain control over the mainland provinces. On that basis, Chiang has been able to justify maintaining land and amphibious forces which substantially exceed the defense requirements for Taiwan, the Penghus, or the main offshore islands. The additional divisions would be used in operations on mainland China."

Retorts Ciccolella's group: "although the USG (U. S. Government) does not officially indorse the back-to-the-Mainland program, and it is probable that the vast majority of Chinese military personnel have had few real illusions concerning the practical aspects of this program, however, it has served as the cement to hold the GRC (Government, Republic of China) intact in the absence of any real or emotional rallying point....

"We do know privately," adds the Taiwan team confidentially, "that the GRC considerable sums of money in special funds, mostly marked for contingency use in Mainland recovery."

The Pentagon, questioning the value of Chiang's extra forces, points out: "The presence of large GRC army had not caused a reduction in the CPR (Chinese peoples republic) threat to either Southeast Asia or Northeast Asia because the CPR has not diverted sizeable defense forces to the Foochow military region (F,M,R) opposite Taiwan....

RED CHINESE THREAT

"DIA (defense intelligence agency) has concluded," adds the Pentagon, "on the basis of limitations on CPR logistic capabilities that the CPR could not mount major offensives on more than one front. The CPR threat to Northeast or Southeast Asia would be reduced (if) it became clear that a major offensive against Taiwan was being launched. Some U. S. forces maintained for the defense of either Southeast Asia or Korea could then be redeployed to Taiwain. A U. S. commitment of forces should be more than adequate to deter the CPR."

Ciccolella and his advisers disagreed.

"The CPR military capabilities," they warn, "will improve over the next decade with continued emphasis on the improvement of nuclear weapons capabilities...The CPR has the capability to erupt numerous conflicts which would immobilize U. S. forces in other areas of Asia negating any U. S. assistance to the GRC."

Ciccolella is particularly eager to modernize Chiang's small navy. The Pentagon, however, insists that "the U. S. now maintains the complicated and expensive naval weapon systems necessary to defeat either the USSR or CPR in an Asian sea war. This U. S. capability is more than sufficient for any combiation of naval threats."

CHIANG'S NAVY

Because the U. S. seeks "to avoid a direct US-CPR confrontation," however, the Pentagon has furnished Chiang with enough ships to patrol the coast, supply the offshore islands and ward off a Red Chinese amphibious attack.

The Chinese nationalist navy "will retain these capabilities," in the Pentagon's opinion, "through FY 73 (Fiscal year 1973) without major investment in new ships or craft largely because the CPR does not appear to be developing naval offensive forces."

Contradicts the Ciccolella team: "Estimates of CPR shipbuilding are poor, but information is available which indicates that the naval shipbuilding is progressing at a faster rate than indicated (by the Pentagon) we believe that the situation is underestimated....

"The GRC has not successfully engaged the Chicom (C,C) navy in several years, having lost three costly engagements in 1965. (The Pentagon) study does not credit the Chicom navy with the superior performance capability indicated above, nor does it take into consideration the rapid obsolescence of the GRC naval ships."

At this time, it isn't at all certain whether President Nixon will be able to carry out his cutbacks or whether the entrenched brass hats in the Far East will win the secret debate

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SODOM BY THE SEA:

New York: -- New politics is the old politics revisited. By old politics we mean 1968, of course. Anyone who'd go back further than a year or so in this maelstrom of the new politics destroy the old in a show of shows, a political rally to end all rallies. It was run for the benefit of the re-election campaign of John V. Lindsay who is playing the Republican Party like a yo-yo, up and down, mostly down.

It was in truth a rally run and a show written by those who helped amash the Democratic Party from within, last year -- and now cheerfully and nonpartisanly are giving equal time to the Grand Old Party of which John Lindsay is one of the youth.

Everybody in the new Madison Square Garden auditorium guffawed when President Nixon was mocked, Vice President Spiro Agnew and Mrs. Agnew were lewdly skewed and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller was satirized.

It was a "grand coalition" the other Saturday night who came and paid $150 a ticket to be amused by a program titled "Who's that With John Lindsay?" Well, with Mayor Lindsay was the old vanguard bolstered by some new faces. There was Frankie Sinatra and Judy Collins (guitar and all), and Ethel Merman and Harry Belafonte and Barbra Streisand, Helen Hayes, Robert Ryan, Sidney Poitier, and of course the new graduate, Dustin Hoffman. And there was old Eli Wallach, who did more than insinuate that those calling for law and order were plagiarizing an old speech of Adolf Hitler. It did for a moment, Attila the Hun or not, sound like Hollywood in the '30s coming out of the silent movies.

But this is not a review of contemporary political vaudeville lacking only dear old Gypsy Rose Lee. This is a report on the end of politicai parties in this magelapolis -- and the fact that the coalition plans to go for broke in many a major city if it works here.

This is a coalition of Gene McCarthy's lads and lassies, of the Kennedys' government - in - exile, of the Liberal Party now frequented mostly by unions of the old left and the bring-the-boys-home labor leaders who first whipped up the slogan back in 1945 -- and of John V. Lindsay who some day hopes to run for president of the U. S.

It doesn't take a million-dollar vaudeville package to portray the coalition. They have all been in it for the Vietnam Moratorium -- Henry Foner, the furriers union leader who is chairman of the revamped Liberal Party's Trade Union Committee; the Local 1199 union of hospital workers (remember Charleston) David Livingston, a militant who appears to have coined the Bring-the-Boys-Home slogan while in khaki during the last big unpleasantness; Adam Walinsky, once half the brain trust of the late Bobby Kennedy, and a hort of others -- in person.

This mayorality race, therefore, is not a local election. It is the making of a precedent.

The coalition's first assignment was to smash the old-line Democratic machine puffing along on a few cylinders for Mario Procaccino, who does a fair job of simulating Fiorello LaGuardia, lucky street corner et al. Then the job was attempted on the Republican Party on one State Sen. John Marchi, an erudite state legislator who has a master's degree, has voted on 25,000 bills and who the coalition is certain is Attila the Hun.

Now the coalition's task is to elect John Lindsay on the esoteric Liberal Party and Independent Party lines. Buy why?

John Lindsay is a Republican who lost the primaries -- that old populist thing which Gov. LaFollette fought for -- for the people. John Lindsay's eagerness to win is understandable. But why should the McCarthy - Kennedy people fight for him? Mayor Lindsay did, after all, put Spiro Agnew into nomination at the Miami Convention.

Point is, that the coalition believes it is rolling up a pile of IOUs for the '70 and '72 elections. If John Lindsay wins by defeating both the Republicans and Democratic candidates in this three-cornered race, he'll have to repay his political debts. These will be called, at the highest interest rates, sooner than he thinks. Because of new state election laws, the "new politics" leaders will be in old-fashioned smoke-filled rooms in less than 90 days wheeling and dealing on candidates for the U. S. Senate and the governorship. The coalition likes the new, new "Republican" Sen. Goodell who is filling out Bob Kennedy's term. So the coalition will go for him in the senatorial race and demand reciprocal support for its own "Democratic Party" choice for a candidate to compete with Nelson Rockefeller.

This means the Kennedy-McCarthy latter-day combination -- if it wins the governorship for a nominal Democrat -- will send a powerful delegation to the Democrats' '72 nominating convention.

Thus Mr. Lindsay, win or lose, will have to back Charles Goodell for re-election and also bolt his own party again by battling Nelson Rockefeller, Richard Nixon and Spiro Agnew.

If he doesn't, no one will ever take his IOUs again. Thus it's all a three-way parley the new left coalition is playing -- it wants to re-elect John Lindsay as mayor. Then use this huge city as the base for a power play throughout New York so it can capture the state for its kind of Democrats. And then use its big delegation to force the nomination of a of a Kennedy-McCarthy type national ticket in '72.

What happens to Mayor Lindsay? Well, he believes the coalition is his and he the hunter will get the bird. The coalition believes he's theirs, and the dog will get the bird.

That's to be seen. The bird, like the public, is gun shy. It's allergic to buckshot. It may leave the hunter and the dog in the cold, cold swamp.

New Creed Proclaims Right Of Youth To Be Sloppy

Dear Ann Landers: Some newspapers don't care what they print. My teen-agers just waved under my nose an article from the Sunday supplement that put my campaign for orderliness back thirty years. I read it twice to make sure I wasn't seeing things.

The article said it is o.k. for kids to be sloppy -- it's part of growing up. If Mary leaves her clothes on the floor -- so what? If Jimmy leaves his bike out in the rain -- forget it. It just proves that they don't attach much importance to material things. The piece continued, "Hooray for the new value system! It's better than ours was!"

The article states specifically that mothers aren't supposed the nag kids about making their beds or putting their clothes where they belong. "Be blind," the article said. "Don't nag about trifles. The freedom to be sloppy is a teenage right."

Ann, you are our final hope. If you agree with this article I'm going to slit my throat. --- Put Them All Together They Spell Mother

Dear Mother: One of the liveliest freedoms of all is the freedom to disagree. And I do --- wholeheartedly.

That article will undoubtedly be heralded by exhausted mothers as an excuse to give up the fight. But I implore you to hang in there, Mom. It takes work and perseverance to teach children to be orderly. Today's sloppy kid is tomorrow's noodnik husband or lousy housekeeper. "New value system" my Aunt Minnie. Sloppy means lazy and there is nothing of value in THAT.

Dear Ann Landers: Last night my husband and I visited with a couple who live up the street. When we came he said, "Please don't ask me to go over there again." I knew why. The woman finished her husband's sentences, corrected his grammar, interrupted him with --- "No, dear, it wasn't like that at all. It was this way." She belittled him and put him down every time he opened his mouth.

These people are socially prominent and the man is well thought of, but his wife makes such a nothing of him, it is embarrassing to be in their company.

Please print this letter and the name of the city. I don't have the nerve to tell the woman why we will not go to her place again or invite her to ours. Thank you. --- Had It

Dear Had: Here's your letter buy I'm NOT printing the city. Every town in the U. S., Canada, Puerto Rico and Mexico has wives who fit your description. Let the battle-axes ask themselves, "Could this be me?"

Confidential to Clutched: What you really want is someone to tell you not to marry the man, so I'll be the one. His track record is a poor one. And yours isn't anything to write home about either. Futhermore there are too many obstacles and neither of you has a history for tenacity or endurance. What can you build with this man -- besides an ulcer? And you've got that already.

Alcohol is no shortcut to social success. If you think you have to drink to be accepted by your friends, get the facts. Read "Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only," by Ann Landers. Send 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper, enclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Mrs. Dell Angerer

Women's Council On Community Improvement

Mrs. Dell Angerer, Kansas City artist and school consultant, will spend two weeks in Stoddard County, October 20-31, as an "Artist - in - Residence," under a program provided by the Missouri State Council on the Arts of cooperation with the WCCI Committee on the Arts.

Mrs. Angerer is a graduate of the University of South Dakota with a master's degree from the University of Kansas and is currently working toward a doctor's degree at New York University. Despite her busy schedule, she has found time to pursue her personal expression of art and recently opened an exhibit in Kansas City.

The Kansas City Star in reviewing the exhibit commented, "--the Unitarian Gallery has opened the windows and let in a gust of fresh air on the Kansas City art scene. The artist is Dell Angerer, who is showing paintings, prints, and appliqued cloth. Mrs. Angerer has shown the possibilities for wit in art and has installed mannequins to demonstrate how her appliqued cloth might look in dresses, and with her strong sense of design and color the dresses are handsome indeed."

In each of the county elementary schools, Mrs. Angerer will present a "Halloween Happening," in which she will illustrate ways for children to be creative with pumpkins, masks, and costuming. She will, also, spend a part of her day with the junior-senior high art classes as a consultant.

A highlight of the artist's residency will be a series of four informal evening lecture-demonstrations, which will be open to any interested adults or youths of this area. A display of Mrs. Angerer's work can be seen at these sessions. There will be no charge for any of these events to be held at the Dexter Library Civic Center, starting at 7:30 p.m. on the following schedule: Monday, Oct. 20, "Acrylics, Polymers, and Oils"; Wed., Oct. 22, Drawings and Watercolors; Tuesday, Oct. 28, Block Prints and Fabric Design; Thursday, Oct. 30, Design Critique.

The Gospel Visitor

By: REEDUS M. BAUGHER
"FAITH COMES BY HEARING"

A concept of "saving faith," basic to much denominational teaching, makes faith a "gift of God" -- something God directly puts in the heart of the individual. Man is thought to be so depraved, so opposed to anything good, that direct devine intervention is necessary to make man receptive to the things of God. But reflecting upon the very meaning of "faith" shows us that it is an act of man's, something man does. He "believes" or refuses to "believe."

During the early years of Barton W. Stone, as a Presbyterian preacher, these were vexing thoughts. "Often when I was addressing the listening multitudes on the doctrine of total depravity, their inability to believe -- and of the necessity of the physical power of God to produce faith; and then persuading the helpless to repent and believe the gospel, my zeal in a moment would be chilled at the contradiction. How can they believe? How can they repent? How can they do impossibilities? How can they be guilty of not doing them?"

Evolving from this basic concept of faith, has come the "Universalists," -- who reasons since God is good and since salvation belongs to him, and since Christ died for all, all will be saved. But these fail to remember, that, "Faith comes by hearing." "In flaming fire taking vengence on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Thess. 1:8)

Then to, there were those in the days of Jesus who said, "Master, we know that thou art true, and teachest the way of God in truth, neither carest thou for any man; for thou regardest not the person of man." (Matt. 22:16) But we know they were not sincere in this, had they been they would have followed Him, instead they opposed Him. Many today say, he is true and teachest the way of God in truth; but prove by their life that they do not mean it. If we believe our own words, we will not quibble about what he says. (Mark 16:15-16) "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Faith comes by hearing.

The "Atheist" has reasoned, "there is no God." But faith comes to them as it does to all, by hearing. --"For he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Heb. 11:6)

If any person ever expects to be saved he must first realize that "faith" doesn't "just come," rather, "FAITH COMES BY HEARING THE WORD OF GOD." (Rom. 10:17)

Clothes Are Her Thing

By HELEN HENNESSY
NEA Women's Editor

NEW YORK—(NEA)—Ann Miller, the star who gave the Broadway musical, "Mame," a new lease on life, was talking about clothes. She dotes on them. And what a great vehicle a show like that is for a woman who loves finery.

Still, however perfectly tailored to your liking the role is, show business does have some drawbacks. It was only 4 p.m. and Ann was already having dinner.

"I have to eat early to make the theater," she said. "But tonight it's earlier than usual. I have to go to the doctor before the show."

She threw out her back while on stage the night before and had to have it "put back in place" before theater time the next evening. It was so painful that she had to take a taxi to the doctor's office just around the corner from her apartment. Yet later that same night she would be dancing up a storm on stage in glittering costumes she loves to wear.

Her favorite designer is Bill Haire of Victoria Royal.

"It was funny how I met him," she said. "But as a result of our meeting, I have bought practically his whole current collection."

Before opening here in "Mame," Ann had an engagement in Chicago which included some very special social events during her stay.

"I took some of my very best clothes and furs," she recalled. "Diors, Balenciagas and a blue embroidered evening coat and dress costume.

"When I came back to my hotel after a performance, I found everything had been stolen, even my luggage."

She couldn't replace the Diors and Balenciagas but the store in Los Angeles knew where the blue dress and coat came from—a manufacturer called Victoria Royal in New York. And through them she met the designer, Bill Haire. She asked him to replace the ensemble and, although he was finished cutting, he sold her the sample from the firm's library.

Bill does only cocktail and evening clothes. "But," said Ann, "when I'm not working I'm a night girl. I like to go out and have fun. And his clothes seem to have been designed just for me.

"Every time I wear his clothes on television, people call to ask who designed them."

Bill Haire's designs, after the original piece has been made by him in New York, are executed in Honk Kong.

Fashion News

NEW YORK (AP) — Never noted for normalcy, designer Giorgio di Sant'Angelo shunned the standard showroom setting for his spring collection and instead sent his models scampering down he red-carpeted staircase of the National Democratic Club.

There was no particular reason for selecting that site, but it did provide an odd contrast Thursday night.

Downstairs in the dining room, conservatively dressed, white-haired men discussed the stock market, politics and the World Series-winning New York Mets.

Upstairs in the grand ballroom, pianist Peter Duchin and pop art collector Ethel Scull applauded and cried "Bravo!" as models with eye makeup stretching to their ears displayed a series of clothes designed for stares, not style.

To the accompaniment of chamber music played on a gilt piano, the models wandered among the white marble pillars in abbreviaed minidresses, panne velvet pants suits, enormous shawls that revealed almost-bare bosoms and knit dresses that looked like sweaters.

Almost every outfit was cinched at the waist with a leather belt, wide in front, narrow in back. Many of the creations were topped with turbans, tied to one side like those of Greek soldiers. When the models didn't wear hats, they pulled their hair to one side to create the same effect.

There were a few fashions that could be called conservative by Sant'Angelo's standards. Most followed the trend of the peasant dress with ruffled aprons and pinafores topping layers and layers of petticoats.

Other wearable items included a quilted skirt in flower print and a floor-length shirt dress of silver panne velvet.

Sant'Angelo apparently was enchanted with feathers. He made muffs out of coq feathers, lined triangular fur shawls with ostrich feathers and even sent some models down the stairs carrying stuffed birds on their arms.

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP) - A Florida state representative says some glasses can be dangerous for lady auto drivers.

"Unfortunately, fashion has supplied us with those big, fat, jeweled glasses which blot out a whole hunk of peripheral vision," said Rep. Cecil Bothwell, R-Orlando. "They're bad at intersections."

Bothwell has proposed a bill that would make it a violation for any driver to wear glasses with rims three-eights of an inch in width.

Fenwick Roars Again

THE MOUSE ON WALL STREET. By Leonard Wibberley. Morrow. $4.95.

Wibberley's frolicsome, farcical foolishness about the dizzy domain of Grand Fenwick is here again.

In case you didn't read "The Mouse That Roared" or its sequels, Grand Fenwick is a duchy on the French border, three by five miles in size, population 5,000, with a fine, medieval attitude toward life.

This time Grand Fenwick finds itself in a dilemma. In the treaty negotiated after the little nation had defeated the United States (with long bows), there was a provision that Grand Fenwick could license an American firm to make chewing gum flavored with its wine, and collect 40 per cent of the profits. For years that provision was dormant.

But a sudden chewing gum boom results in a check for a million dollars for the little country. Horrible inflation sets in. Desperate measures are needed. Then comes a check for $10 million. The only solution is to get rid of the money.

So the duchess plays the stock market in the United States. Where else could one lose millions in a hurry? Unfortunately she has the innocent gift of winning instead of losing.

This nonsense gives the author a free wheeling opportunity to lampoon mergers, corporate raiders, conglomerates, tax concessions and the whole financial world.

The whole affair winds up with an international financial crisis, which Grand Fenwick settles very neatly with a brilliant disregard for the green stuff. An amusing romp, full of giggles.

Big 8 Battles Resume Saturday

By LEW FERGUSON
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oklahoma begins defense of its Big Eight co-championship Saturday, while Missouri and Kansas State, the two teams given good chances of dethroning the Sooners, tread warily into upset situations.

Oklahoma, which suffered its first loss, 27-17, at Texas last week, entertains Colorado, 3-1, at Norman, Okla.

Missouri, unbeaten and untied in four games and ranked sixth nationally, also is at home against Oklahoma State, a team which already has sprung two upsets.

Kansas State plays at home against Iowa State, a team the Wildcats have not been able to defeat the past four years.

Kansas travels to Nebraska in a battle of teams trying to climb back into title contention after dropping their league openers.

Oklahoma, explosive offensively with Jack Mildren, Steve Owens and Roy Bell, leads the conference in offense with 34 points and 400 yards a game, while the Buffaloes are tops on defense, allowing only 217 per game, and are tied for second in scoring defense, 12 points a game.

"Their defensive play right now is completely outstanding," Oklahoma Coach Chuck Fairbanks said. "We must run the ball well to be successful, and I really don't think our offense is strong enough to stick the ball down Colorado's throat."

That game matches Owens and Colorado's Bob Anderson, two of the Big Eight's biggest offensive stars. Owens is averaging 138.7 yards rushing and Anderson 112.3.

Missouri's Joe Moore is outdueling both of them with his 141.5-yard average. However, the Tigers have injury problems at defensive ackle and offensive guard which give heart to upset-minded Oklahoma State. The Cowboys have conquered Houston and Texas Tech.

K-State quarterback Lynn Dickey, who got his start against Iowa State las year when he came off the bench and passed for 248 yards, will find the Cyclones tough defensively. However, Iowa State has had an erratic offense.

Kansas Coach Pepper Rodgers sounded the theme song of both his Jayhawks and Nebraka when he said, "I don't expect the winner of the Big Eight to go undefeated. Just because Nebraska lost its first game won't eliminate them from the race, or us, either."

Meetings Set

COLUMBIA — Basketball rules interpretation meetings for high school basketball officials and coaches will be held at 31 different sites throughout Missouri starting next Monday.

The meetings, which are held each as a part of the MSHSAA program for training officials, will start with an all- day session for interpreters at the MSHSAA Office on Sunday, October 19. Jack W. Miles, Assistant Executive Secretary of the MSHSAA and in charge of the program for state officials, will conduct the meeting for interpreters. Discussion of the 1969- 70 basketball rules changes and officiating mechanics are to be on the agenda. All rules interpreters will attend the session after which they will conduct meetings at various sites assigned to them across the state.

Missouri high schools follow the rules as adopted by the National Basketball Committee of the United States and Canada.

All basketball officials registered with the MSHSAA and head basketball coaches are required to attend one of the above meetings. Assistant basektball coaches, players, and other interested persons are also urged to attend.

Bill Arment will be the interpreter at meetings Oct. 27th at Cape Girardeau (SEMSC Gym); Kennett Oct. 21st; New Madrid Oct. 29th and Poplar Bluff Oct. 30th. Each of the meetings will be held at the high school, except where otherwise stated and will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Big Red Battle Vikings Sunday

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The mighty Minnesota Vikings, pacing the NFL's Central Division, pay their first-ever regular- season call to St. Louis when they tangle with the Cardinals at Busch Memorial Stadium on Sunday afternoon.

Kickoff is set for 1:05 p.m.

The Big Red and the Vikings have met only twice in the regular season, both times in he Twin Cities and both times with the Cardinals coming out on top, 56-14 in 1963 and 34-28 in 1967

The clubs met in a pre-season game in Memphis during August and the Vikings scored a 41-13 victory. The Vikings lost their opener to the Giants, 24-23, but then have scored three straight victories, pounding the Colts, 52-14; the Packers, 19-7; and the Bears, 31-0. Minnesota and Green Bay share the division lead with 3-1 marks.

St. Louis, dropping a 33-17 verdict to the Washington Redskins last Sunday, now is 2-2 for the season nd a game behind the Giants and Brown, who are tied at 3-1.

The Marching Leathernecks of Western Illinois University will make their debut in the halftime program. The band, from Macomb, Ill., is under the direction of Dr. Harry Haines.

After Sunday's game, the Big Red goes to Cleveland for a head- to-head Century Division confrontation, then returns home to meet the Saints and Giants in the first two weeks of November.

Adventures With A Modern Day Time Machine

THE HOUSE ON THE STRAND. By Daphne du MAURIER. Doubleday. $5.95.

There is an old fashioned adventure story with modern overtones in this book.

Richard, the novel's hero and narrator, is a former editor who is living in an old house in Cornwall, England, borrowed from his long-time friend Magnus, a biophysicist.

It happens that Magnus has been tinkering in his spare time with hallucinogenic drugs, and he induces Richard to try them. The potions take Richard back to the early 14th century — a variation on the "time machine" device — where he finds himself a ghost-like observer of an ancient world.

Each time he takes a drug "trip" his contact is Roger, the steward of a manor house, and Roger is in the midst of a great deal of plotting, skullduggery and cloak-and-dagger costume drama.

While Richard is shuttling back and forth between the present and the past, he endeavors to keep his wife from learning what he is up to, and that leads to some complications.

This is sheer entertainment, a story for the story's sake, and it is deftly done.

Miles A. Smith

TALENTED TOED Henry Brown of the Missouri University fighting Tigers grid team, got in the Mizzou record - books last week when he booted his seventh field- goal of the season. He surpassed Bill Bates' one- season high of six field goals (in 13 attempts) set in 1965.

Tigers Look For Air Attack

COLUMBIA — In nine football meetings with Ol' Mizzou since 1960, Oklahoma State never has scored more than 10 points against the Tigers in any single encounter.

The Cowboys under new saddle- boss Floyd Gass may need to upgrade that offensive performance sharply here Saturday afternoon if they hope to close out this decade of MU-OSU football warfare on a winning upbeat.

Missouri (4-0) is averaging 28 points a game so far in victories over Air Force, Illinois, Michigan and Nebraska. The Pokes are (2-1) and averaging right at 14 points for three starts -- two of them upset wins over Houston and Texas Tech. OSU dropped its opener to Arkansas, 39-0.

Oklahoma State is apt to treat a Memorial Stadium turnout of 54,000 to a sky-filled extravaganza. With quarterback Bob Cutburth calling the shots, the Stillwater crowd has averaged some 33 passes each time out.

"They may throw 50 Saturday," predicts Clay Cooper, the Tigers' secondary coach whose three- deep cordon of Butch Davis, Dennis Poppe and George Fountain must stalk Orange and Black interlopers.

Cornhusker quarterbacks Jerry Tagge and Van Brownson provided a pretty taxing workout last week -- collaborating for 42 throws. As a result, tiger ground defenses were not actually probed to any extent -- the Huskers amassing only 36 rushing yards.

More of the same could be in prospect. Cutburth, a 197-pound senior, throws often in the direction of Hermann Eben and Tom Dearinger. A year ago, Mizzou defenders filched four of 34 OSU aerials -- three of the steals by Roger Wehrli.

Mizzou's unbeaten Tigers, fifth- ranked by U.P.I., and sixth - ranked by the A.P., will chip-away at Cowboy defenses-- ith workhorse Joe Moore on the prowl. The 198- pound Bengal junior has a four- game rushing pick- up of 566 yards -- but can expect the Cowboys' tough tackle tandem of John Ward and John Little to be keying his every move.

Jim Harrison will be Moore's backup man, and the 238-pound junior may also spell Ron McBride at fullback. Mizzou's slotback position was twice-holted in the Nebraska game -- when John Staggers slightly dislocated a shoulder, and place-kicker Henry Brown dislocated a thumb.

Staggers, the splendid kick-return threat, should be ready for the Cowboys -- while Brown's injury, obviously, will not affect his status as No. 1 field- goal kicker. Brown's seventh field goal of the year put the rangy senior from Middleton, Pa., in the Mizzou record- books-- for it surpassed Bill Bates' one- season high of six field goals (in 13 attempts) set in 1965.

The Missourians could come up short- handed at one tackle station Saturday. Definitely out for three weeks anyway is John Cowan, the promising sophomore from Springfield, Mo., who started the first three games for leg- sore Rocky Wallace. Cowan has an ankle sprain.

Wallace, too, is questionable again. The quick 219- pound senior lasted less than a half against Nebraska before retiring with what was later diagnosed as a retraction of scar tissue in the area of his original pulled hamstring muscle. His readiness this week is problematical-- and this latest recurrence could cancel out altogether his 1969 availability.

Sophomore Steve Mizer is the probable replacement.

Mizzou leads Oklahoma State 13-2 in the all- time rivalry-- with Coach Dan Devine's record against the Pokes 8-1. His '64 team lost here, 10-7.

Weaver Predicts Pennant For Baltimore In 1970

BALTIMORE (AP) — The World Series dream of the Baltimore Orioles has turned into a nightmare. Or, even worse.

"Even in a nightmare you couldn't dream up the things that happened to us," outfielder Frank Robinson said. "Hollywood wouldn't believe it, either."

If any of the Orioles do suffer mid-winter insomnia, they'll no doubt envision the New York Mets making fantastic catches or standing in the way of line drives.

Time after time the Mets choked off budding Baltimore rallies with their gloves as they won the World Series with four consecutive victories after losing the opener.

By actual count, the Orioles slammed four outfield line drives in the second game and five infield shots either on the ground or in the air, with shortstop Bud Harrelson making a diving catch of Don Buford's liner.

But that was only the warmup of bigger things. In the next three games, catches by the Amazin' Mets included:

—Two sensational grabs in game No. 2 by center fielder Tommie Agee, robbing Ellie Hendricks and Paul Blair of extra base hits while preventing five Baltimore runs from scoring.

—A sliding catch by left fielder Cleon Jones on a drive by Dave Johnson in game No. 3, and a diving grab by right fielder Ron Swoboda on a two-out liner by Brooks Robinson in the ninth inning with two runners aboard.

The catch by Swoboda, not known for his defensive prowess, seemed implausible. The Orioles also thought it was a bad play.

"He should have played it safe," Robinson said. "The runner was going to score from third base anyway, to tie the score. Had the ball gotten past, we would have won to even the Series 2-2."

But the catch was made, and the Mets are the new champions of baseball.

"We hit so many shots," Johnson sighed after the game.

"You can't beat magic," reserve outfielder Curt Motton said, echoing the oft-repeated description of the Mets, who overcame 100-1 preseason odds and won everything in sight.

Manager Earl Weaver of the Orioles, who won the American League pennant in his first full season as a major league skipper, disagreed.

"The Mets aren't lucky and they don't need gremlins to win," he said. "No other pitching staff contained us as well during the year."

The Orioles, who compiled a .265 team batting average while winning 109 regular season games, hit .146 in the Series and scored only nine runs on 23 hits. Three of the runs were batted in by pitchers.

"We won all those games, but we didn't win the one which counted," Frank Robinson said. "I still feel we have the best club, position by position, but the Mets have a fine team. This is proof of what can happen in a short series."

"The Mets beat the best damn ball club in sight," Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn told Weaver after the final game.

A crowd of 4,000 which welcomed the Orioles home at Friendship International Airport Thursday night, carried signs which proclaimed: "We're still No. 1," "Win or lose, Orioles we love you," and "You're still No. 1 with us."

"We're going to win the pennant again next year," Weaver said. "I didn't make that kind of prediction for 1969, but I am now for next year. And, I hope the Mets win again. We'd like another shot at them."

Three Rivers Opens Season November 18th

POPLAR BLUFF — "The progress being made by the Raider basketball team has been very gratifying." That is the way Coach Bob Cradic felt about his chargers just after viewing a game type scrimmage that was highly competitive.

The Raiders will see action this year against one of the toughest scheduled to be found in the junior college ranks with the likes of Moberly, Crowder, Paducah, Meramec, Forest Park, Mineral Area, and St. Louis Baptist being perennially strong.

Three Rivers will be going with ten freshmen and one sophomore transfer from Arkansas State.

The only returning letterman, Glenn Williamson from Bloomfield, Missouri, has withdrawn from school. Glenn was a contender for the starting center position at the time he left the team and his absence has left the Raiders with only one center for the first semester.

This vacancy should be filled however, when Lewis Little, a 6'6" transfer from Lincoln University becomes eligible at the change of semesters in January. Little competed for Howardville in high school.

"We are literally beginning anew this season and this has slowed us up to a certain extent, but any inexperience we have is certainly overshadowed by the teams great desire " commented Coach Cradic. We were very disorganized the first few weeks of practice, but we are now beginning to function as a unit, we are finally beginning to know a little about where everyone is supposed to be, and most of all, we now know about what we expect from each other," Cradic stated. "If these young men continue working with the same determination they have shown in the last two weeks we should certainly win our share of ball games. We are two deep at every position and this has helped to make our practices competitive.

As a matter of fact it has been impossible to divide the boys up into two teams and have one completely dominate the other."

The Raiders have just completed their fifth week of practice and they open at home in the Poplar Bluff High School gymnasium November 18th against Southern Baptist of Walnut Ridge, Arkansas.

Sports Corner

By Ron Jaynes Sports Editor

Just when we think we've hit upon a rather easy week boom... upsets by East Prairie and Steele knock the prop out from under us and Gideon joins the group as we had another six of nine weeks for a season total of 34 winners in 48 attempts.

This week should be the toughest of the season, since top division clashes are scheduled as well as a number of top non-divisional bouts set.

So for you who wonder... here's the way this week's action looks from here.

CAPE GIRARDEAU AT POPLAR BLUFF — State wide ratings have the Tigers favored but we'll go against those machines as we've said all season that the Mules are the team to beat for the division honors and this one game might settle the matter as Cape's been our second choice. The game pits a stout defense against a potent offense and undefeated records on the part of both squads. Homecoming ceremonies add to the Mules effort as well as two weeks of preparation. From here it looks like Poplar Bluff 14, Cape 10.

EAST PRAIRIE AT CARUTHERSVILLE -- Now what way would you go if the Eagles had just the week before upset the division leading Dexter Bearcats... Perhaps with East Prairie, but we'll have to be shown another performance on defense like last week before the Eagles can gain our entire confidence. We'll say... Caruthersville 21, East Prairie 7. Show us Eagles... just one more time.

CHARLESTON AT KENNETT -- A breather finally... The Bluejays have been flying high since its loss to Sikeston and will continue to do so in this battle. Charleston 28, Kennett 0.

SIKESTON AT DEXTER -- In recent years this has been sort of a run- away for the Bulldogs, but not this campaign. Last week's loss is still ringing in the Bearcats ears and the desire to upset the Dogs adds even more. It'll be close, but Sikeston 28, Dexter 15.

PORTAGEVILLE AT GIDEON -- This game will decide the New Madrid county grid champions for 1969. Both have had their proud moments and bad one's too. It's hard to tell, but we see the visitors all the way. Portageville 21, Gideon 7. HAyti AT MALDEN — The mighty Green Wave will add victory number six in the battle. Malden moves closer and closer toward the Southern Division title and tunes up in this battle for next week's clash with Chaffee, the division leader. The Wave proved last week that when Don Clayton's stopped it makes little difference as the Wave send out other speedy men toward the goal lines. It looks like... Malden 28, Hayti 0.

ILLMO- SCOTT CITY at Potosi -- After being deprived of sole possession of the Bootheel Division crown, the Rams are down and will stay that way in this battle and a look at its schedule it looks like the remainder of the season. Potosi 20, I-SC 7.

STEELE AT LUXORA, ARK. -- This Bootheel teams that go into Arkansas have really played havock with our calls this season... this one is little different, but we'll say ... Steele 14, Luxora 7.

PERRYVILLE AT VALLE -- This Saturday night encounter should only be good for the Pirates fourth loss of the season. We see... Valle 28, Perryville 14.

Listen to the "Jelly Belly Show" on KSIM at 5 p.m. each day.

NOW HEAR THIS-- I hereby challenge Mike Shain to a public weigh-in... Shain, you can choose the site and I'll bring the scales... lets just see who's the heaviest...

Your braggs of being the lightest is to be proved.

Portageville Planning Homecoming

PORTAGEVILLE— The 1969 homecoming at Portageville high school is taking shape. In making the arrangements for this Homecoming, the student council had to make major decisions.

The council came up with the following ideas: The band, will be the 1932 Ballroom Blues, from Jonesboro, Ark., which is a seven man band with sounds ranging from Summertime, to a James Brown routine.

The dance will be held in the Portageville high school cafeteria Oct. 31, which is Halloween night. Much thought and discussion have been given to the idea of changing the date, but it was all to no avail.

Tradition was broken when the Council selected a corsage of three carnations with the placement of three letters on them, these being P.H.S. The original flower was the white mum with only the letter P on it. The corsage will still have blue and white streamers and a gold colored football dangling from it.

One of the major problems that the council had to overcome was the placement of the outdoor back drop and Homecoming Queen's throne. Every previous year this was placed at the front east end of the football bleachers. During the past summer, Portageville High School acquired the funds o build a fence between the bleachers and the football field, thus blocking the area for the setting. The student council quickly solved this problem by placing the backdrop on the south side of the fence at the front east end of the football bleachers.

There has been no official announcement of Homecoming royalty, but the Queen and her court have already been chosen by the members of the football team.

Due to the physical and mental labor of the council and its sponsor, G. R. Williams, this year's Homecoming will be the most unique ever experienced at Portageville High School.

Bid to Oust Blackwell Gains Backer

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Sen. Richard Southern, D-Monroe City, has joined majority leader A. Basey Vanlandingham, D-Columbia, in a request for a Democratic caucus of Senate members to nominate a replacement for Sen. Earl R. Blackwell, D-Hillsboro, as president pro tem.

"My request is the result of recent actions of the president pro tem which threaten to irreparably divide the Missouri House and Senate," Southern wrote to the caucus chairman, Sen. T.D. McNeal, D-St. Louis.

"Senator Blackwell's reign has done little but bring discredit on the Missouri Senate. He is totally unresponsive to the needs of Missouri citizens, to our party platform, to the will of the majority of the Demcratic members and to the program of the Democratic administration."

Blackwell's ouster and replacement as president pro tem would have to wait until the Senate is in session, perhaps next spring. He is selected by the majority party but is elected finally by the full Senate membership and the latter action cannot take place unless the Legislature is convened.

Blackwell said he was sure the governor would not be so unwise as to call a special session for the sole purpose of giving the Senate a chance to dump him from office. Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and Blackwell have been unrelenting foes on the issue of tax increases.

The controversial president pro tem said he didn't care if he lost the job. Blackwell said he had taken it only because he thought he could help reduce the administration's control over the Legislature.

He said he would push his campaign for a voter referendum of the $106 million income tax increase enacted by the September special session.

Danforth Calls For Payment of Fee Shortage

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — Atty. Gen. John C. Danforth Thursday demanded that Mrs. Shirley Butters, national Democratic committeewoman, pay the state $42,062.24 he said she owes as a former operator of the Department of Revenue's Bowling Green fee office.

If the state treasurer hasn't received the money by Thursday, Oct. 23, he said in a certified letter to Mrs. Butters, "We will take whatever action is indicated to protect the interests of the state."

The total includes amounts covered by an audit conducted by state Auditor Haskell Holman, plus an additional amount uncovered by a department check of records for later dates than the auditor's accounting.

The attorney general also called upon the American Insurance Co. of Kansas City to meet as much of the obligation as the bond issued to her will cover.

The demanded amount includes a total of $39,651.45 covered by the official audit.

"Furthermore," the attorney general's letter said, "the records of the department of revenue reveal, as of Oct. 8, 1969, an additional difference in the motor vehicle, sales tax and use tax accounts of $935.04, and an additional difference in the operators' license account of $1,476.50. Further increases in these accounts can be expected as people present to the Department of Revenue receipts bearing the validation stamp of your office.

"On behalf of the state of Missouri we hereby demand that you as the fee agent in charge of the Bowling Green office pay immediately to the treasurer of the state of Missouri the sum of $42,062.24 to balance (as of Oct. 8, 1969) the total receipts of the Bowling Green motor vehicle license office and the total deposits made with the Farmers Bank of Bowling Green."

In charge of the case for the attorney general is D. Brook Bartlett, assistant attorney general.

FRANKFORT, Ky. (AP) — Credit cards will be accepted by Kentucky's state resort parks. Gov. Louie B. Nunn said an arrangement has been made with one of the biggest credit card dispensers for lodging and meals.

Canada, Waters, And Oil

The Canadian Parliament is scheduled to reconvene on Wednesday (Oct. 22).

Canada and the United States live in a peculiar relationship. It has been called a symbiosis. According to WEBSTER'S this is a form of living together where the association is "advantageous, or often necessary, to one or both, and not harmful to either." But strains do develop.

Premier Pierre Elliott Trudeau of Canada has promised to give a full statement on sovereignty of Arctic waters after Parliament comes back from recess on Oct. 22. In a preliminary statement to the House of Commons last May 22, Trudeau said: "Canada's sovereignty over its Arctic regions, including the islands of the Arctic archipelago, is well established and . . . there is no dispute concerning this matter."

A mild dispute was not long in developing. At a Canadian - United States ministerial meeting in June, U. S. Undersecretary of State U. Alexis Johnson challenged any idea that Canadian sovereignty extended beyond the three mile limit around the Arctic islands.

Trudeau, a former professor of law, has been very careful not to let popular feeling push him into a hasty all-embracing statement on sovereignty. He did say last May: "Canada's sovereign rights over the continental shelf in the Arctic flow from Canada's sovereignty over the adjacent lands, and again there is no dispute on this matter." The Montreal GAZETTE later chipped in with an editorial explaining Canada's historical rights to the entire area: "Canada inherited the whole Archipelago from Britain in 1880 and has maintained definite presence there since."

Trudeau has pointed out that the law of the sea "is a complex subject," and that sovereignty or the right of innocent passage in the waters between the islands "would have to be settled not on an arbitrary basis but with due regard for established principles of international law." He noted in May that the Canadian government would welcome the voyage of the supertanker S. S. MANHATTAN in its attempt to open a Northwest Passage.

The Canadian government's claims for the continental shelf and sealanes are important because they may hold new deposits of oil. One of the big questions about the Canadian position now developing is whether Premier Trudeau will apply the "straight base lines system" of sovereignty to the Arctic waters.

This system, developed in 1964, means drawing a line from the furthermost to the innermost point of shorelines and claiming sovereignty over the entire body of water in between. This contrasts with the usual practice of following the contour of the shoreline and declaring sovereignty over a three-mile area. Trudeau is expected to clarify the Canadian position in the upcoming statement.

There is another consideration. The Montreal STAR explained: "If a tanker sank or was damaged, the effect on northern waters could be disastrous." The newspaper notes that zoologists already have warned that oil development work has damaged the offshore waters and tundra in which Arctic wild life maintains a precarious experience. Other papers -- and opposition politicians -- have expressed the same concern over a disastrous oil spill. Premier Trudeau has on his desk a problem of national unity, conservation and pride.

When baking apple pie, grate several tablespoons of sharp cheddar cheese into the pie dough before rolling it out. The cheese helps to make a crisp and delicious crust, and complements the flavor of apples.

Criminal Justice System Surveyed

COLUMBIA - Missouri law enforcement officials are being surveyed by the University of Missouri - Columbia to obtain suggestions for improving the criminal justice system and to determine their needs to help bring about the improvement.

The two-pronged attack includes a questionnaire survey mailed this week to over 600 police chiefs, sheriffs, marshals, and constables. Within a month trained field research interviewers will discuss matters personally with many of the officers and others.

The survey is being directed by Dr. John Galliher, assistant professor of sociology at UMC. Mrs. Jean Everling, supervisor of field research for the University, will train and supervise the interviewers, who will be in the field Oct. 30 after a three-day training session on the Columbia campus.

The study is being financed by a grant of $30,966 from the Missouri Law Enforcement Assistance Council, with funds stemming from the 1968 federal bill providing [illegible] state governments under the crime - in - the - streets elimination program.

Mrs. Everling supervises a trained staff of interviewers for similar studies over the state by sociologists, rural sociologists, and agricultural economists at UMC. Specific training for this program will be offered them Oct. 27-29 before they go into the field.

Questionnaires -- 30 of which were returned within 48 hours of mailing -- to the 600 law enforcement officials this week inquire about what their agencies need, size of their departments, what personnel needs are, what physical facilities such as space and vehicles are available, and how much training and equipment they have. They also asked what is their major problem, such as felonies, traffic, or public relations, and what the state can do to help solve these problems.

Information obtained from the questionnaires and the personal interviews will be compiled for study and analysis.

THE ORDEAL OF A JUDGE

It is the right and dusty of the U.S. Senate to give careful scrutiny to nominations for the federal bench, especially in view of past disclosures concerning the activities and associations of former Supreme Court Justice Abe Fortas. But there is a difference between careful scrutiny and an unconscionable smear, and the latter is the treatment that Senate liberals reserved for Justice Clement F. Haynsworth, Jr., President Nixon's second appointee to the U.S. Supreme Court.

Judge Haynsworth, who has been on the Fourth U.S. Circuit of Appeals for 12 years, is noted for his integrity and dignity. He proved the former and displayed the latter during the long and often ugly hearings in which he was abused.

The abuse directed at Judge Haynsworth was only partly directed at the main himself. As the judge no doubt understood, his critics in and out of the Senate were really trying to hit at the region where he was raised and, beyond that, at the type of distinguished, fair- minded, successful man he is.

Judge Haynsworth is a model of the type of American who has built up and maintainted the traditions of the American judiciary at its best. He is a man of manners and good breeding, calm and restrained in his judgments, an accomplished lawyer, a success in private business -- in short, respectable, dignified and not given to participating in rough and tumble political crusaders. This is the type of man good citizens should want on the Supreme Court of the United States. This is the type of man who hasn't been favored in recent years.

The opponents of Judge Haynsworth were enraged because they weren't getting another rigid - minded political partisan to succeed Abe Fortas.

The union leaders and militants have had their way for years. They saw the Warren Court packed with men who were personally committed to political dogmas and specified protest organizations. Big Unionism and the advocates of social revolution don't want judges on the Supreme Court; they want advocates of liberal causes. For too long they have had their way.

The unions got their man on the court when Arthur Goldberg, former special counsel of the AFL- CIO, was appointed to the Supreme Court. The NAACP got its political reward when Thurgood Marshall, its general counsel, received a place on the nation's highest judicial body.

The activist judges brought the Supreme Court into disrepute. Americans as a whole saw in the Warren Court a political arm of those forces attempting a massive political reconstruction of the United States. Thus President Nixon sought out men who would serve on the Supreme Court as judges, not partisans. The liberals weren't happy with the President's nomination of Judge Warren Burger as Chief Justice, but they didn't feel themselves strong enough to attack him.

In the case of Judge Haynsworth, the liberals decided they could hang him with his regional background-- the fact that he was a Southerner. It seems that a liberal can forgive someone for almost anything except being a Southerner who hasn't turned his back on the South and on the U.S. Constitution as written.

The liberals further concluded that they could use against the judge the fact that he was a man who had shown ability in his personal business dealings, as though success were a crime and not a sign of achievement.

The people in this country who are out to destroy free enterprise and constitutional government hate the Haynsworths of the land, the men who have real achievements to their credit and who have made a mark in life.

It is not hard to imagine what kind of country we would have if all judges in future were men drawn from the ranks of political propagandists and militant agitation groups -- and men of proven competence and personal substance were excluded from the judicary. The free enterprise system would meet a sudden death in the courts. And that, of course is one of the chief goals of the New Left agitators and their liberal sympathizers in the Congress and the liberal news media.

What really lies behind the attacks on Judge Haynsworth is hatred of the capitalism system and of the constitutional system that nourishes it for the benefit of future generations. Judge Haynsworth is simply a convenient target for those who are determined to prevent the federal courts from returning to the strict impartiality that the founding fathers intended the courts would uphold and practice.

GREENHOUSE PAUL FLOWERS

Dear Greenhouse:

When I read in Greenhouse Gerald Baggetts' description of a trip to town made by two people whom he called AB and CD, he seemed to admire AB's interest in the minute details of everyday life in the country and to decry the lack of interest in the same details shown by CD.

But, sir, he should not judge CD too harshly. A classmate of mine 50-odd years ago was just such a character. He was shy with beautiful girls and they all looked alike to him -- just female girls. He chewed Star-Navy plug in private and masticated his cud like an old milkcow while his more alert classmates rolled their own with Stud granulated and left an aroma that the officer of the day could smell three stories distant.

When we visited the local battlefield, we visioned an enactment of the original skirmish in living color exactly as it was fought in '63, while all he saw were the cannonballs and battle debris scattered about the old field. The present locale in full bloom was out of his vision and beyond his ken.

He could never see the forest for the trees and their darn dogs raised so much racket barking that he could not hear the music of hounds' mouths on a hot trail. He made the squad but not the team -- the signals chant immobilized him. He tried out for the band and finally was assigned to toting the big bass drum on his back for the drummer boy.

The beautiful antebellum homes on Church Street on the way to town were just some more houses to him. When the coin and feather fell at the same rate of speed in the vacuum tube it was but another problem in physics, really nothing phenomenal. He was a nice boy and everyone liked him. He made good grades, but so what? He came here to learn and nothing diverted his attention.

It made no difference to him if it was the first bugler who blew tattoo with gusto and taps like it was a sonata or if it was the second who could never get a tune to fit the notes. They were just bugle calls to distract a boy anyhow. The neighboring fields of blue sugar cane being harvested and the juice cooked in open pan evaporators looked like hard labor to him but he would condescend to chew up a few joints of cane and taste the finished syrup.

But hold your pity all; don't shed a tear for him. Down through the years I lost track of him and only recently learned that when he finished his education, he migrated to another state, got himself involved in politics and served very successfully as governor of his adopted state.

-- W. W. Busby

Ah, so, Brother Busby.

I've known governors, senators, mayors, councilmen and other holders of public office like that. They had everything except imagination and vision. They live by bread alone. Maybe they never live at all.

A fellow can be a whiz at kissing babies, employing purple eloquence to thunder golden promises, hiking taxes, loading the public pay roll with charming bureaucrats, and playing ducks and drakes with seven or even eight digit fiscal matters, but is life any better for that kind of genius?

For me you can tell the progress genius to throttle the bulldozer for a decade, and leave the world to darkness and to me.

Exchanging the vows were Bob Lucas, 19, operator of the Mother Love Free shop, and a 17- year -old girl who wants to be known only as "Blue" because that color is her aura.

The minister was Ravi Kristin, identified as pastor of the Church of All Worlds of St. Louis. He said the ceremony was a "combination of Hindu, pagan and Polynesian wedding styles."

Kristin lighted wood shavings in earthenware and asked the couple to circle the fire once. Then he wound a thread around the couple.

The couple exchanged beads and each tied a cloth on the other's wrist. They shared a bread crumb and put the remains in the fire.

Kristin pronounced them united in the cosmic spirit, and they exchanged kisses.

Instead of a wedding cake, the couple served tomato soup to guests.

Students Should Set Goals For Remainder Of Year

AS THE FIRST QUARTER NEARS its end, students should begin to settle down and concentrate on doing their best during the remainder of the school year. By this time, everyone is accustomed to their new subjects and teachers.

The first quarter is usually an adjustment period for most students. The transition from freshman to sophomore, sophomore to juniors, and junior to senior is a change which requires a particular amount of adjustment. With each high grade level, more electives become available and the student must decide what direction to take in selecting his courses.

SHS offers a varied selection of subjects to suit the need of each individual. Vocational courses are available in which students can learn a trade, no matter in waht field their interest lies. For the college-minded student, courses are offered to prepare him for almost any area of study in which he may choose to enter upon reaching college.

Sophomores and freshmen are just beginning their high school careers. Because of this, students may be tempted to ease their way through classes in order to give more time to extra-curricular activities.

This method may seem more appealing at times, but each student must realize that high school is no party; it is rather a serious and important time of life when one must prepare for the future.

Although the juniors can look forward to another year in which to raise their grades, time is growing shorter for them also. By the junior year, most students should be decided as what field they want to enter. After this decision is made, each student has a clearer picture of what direction to take in choosing his courses.

For the seniors, this final year is extremely important, whether the future includes college or obtaining a job. There can be no more putting off until next year, for in a year's time, the present class of seniors will be well on their way to becoming contributing members of society. Therefore, the grades earned this year may "tell the tale" as far as future success is concerned.

This is the time of the school year when each student should set forth specific goals that he wishes to attain during the remainder of the year. It is well to remember that time passes more quickly than one realizes, especially when there is so much to accomplish.

Neal, Lee, Ford, Sauls Selected 'Peppy Peppers'

Senior Linda Neal, junior Susan Lee, sophomore Linda Ford, and freshman Karen Sauls were selected by the Red Pepper officers at the football game last Friday evening as the "peppiest girls."

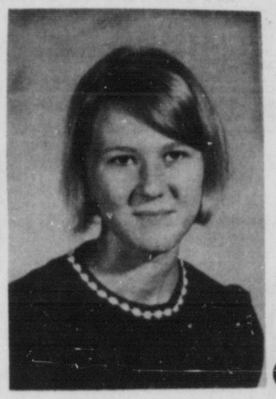

Enthusiasm and vitality are the two qualities required of the girls in the Red Peppers, and these were the qualities that these four girls displayed when the Bulldogs defeated the Kennett Indians.

"All Red Peppers should use these four girls as an example when reciting cheers at the sport contests, said vice-cayenne Ellen Fisher.

Each week the officers select one girl from each of the four classes to be recognized for their enthusiasm in Bulldog Barker.

Roving Reporter

Roving reporter came up with an unusual and seemingly simple question, "What is your favorite color, and why?"

Individual colors represent individual character traits.

If a person's favorite color is blue, perhaps he likes cold weather, or likes its simplicity. If red suits his fancy, he may be a strong-headed person, violent at times, or it may remind him of the rose, its warth and love.

Green may represent growth and life, while yellow may depict a sunny disposition.

These are some of the favorite colors of Sikeston high school students--

Kathy Britt--yellow; it's sunny.

Rachel Ardrey--blue; reminds me of the sky.

Dan Maloney--blue; reminds me of cold.

Carla Colwick--olive green; it goes with everything.

Nathan Kerr--green; money.

Lee Ann Braswell--yellow; I'm color blind and it's the only one I can see.

Joel Allen--blue; reminds me of the sky.

Debbie Launius--blue; it's light and airy.

Billy Marcum--green; reminds me of a new car.

Barb Faulkner --blue; blue eyes and it makes me happy.

Alan McClellan-blue; simplicity.

Editor's Lament

Getting out this paper is no panic.

If we print jokes, people say we are silly.

If we don't, they say we're too serious.

If we stick close to the office all day,

We ought to be around hunting material.

If we go out and try to hustle,

We ought to be on the job in the office.

If we don't print contributions,

We don't appreciate genius!

If we don't the paper is filled with junk!

If we clip things from other papers,

We are too lazy to write them for ourselves.

If we don't, we are stuck on our own stuff.

Now, like as not, some guy will say

We swiped this from some other paper--

WE DID!

Common sense in an uncommon degree is what the world calls wisdom.

SHS Seniors Will Take Ohio Psych Wednesday

Seniors of Sikeston high school will take the Ohio Psychological Test next Wednesday morning.

This examination is given each year to the graduating classes of all Missouri high schools.

This is a scholastic aptitude test and is a part of the state-wide testing program.

Testing will begin at 8:30 under the direction of the counselors and last approximately two hours.

Ohio Psychological scores are used to determine the aptitude of the student to do college work, and many of the colleges and universities use scores on this test as well as the high school record to select recipients of the curator awards to the University of Missouri and scholarships to Southeast Missouri State College.

Questions on the test will be for the most part word associations and comprehension of reading material. "Ohio Psych" is said to measure "how well you can think."

Linguistic factors in the test yield a superior indication of ability to do the required work in most high school and college courses.

This test also furnishes a score of reading ability that is an additional advantage in scholastic diagnosis and educational counseling.

Students of Mrs. Jack Yount's, Gordon Beaver's and Edmundo Deshon's homerooms will convene in the west common room for the test.

Students of W. W. Wilkison's, Miss Jean Love's, and Mrs. Marian Tenkhoff's homerooms will meet in the east common room.

Students from Mrs. Brian Snider's, Mrs. Tim Garner's, Mrs. Tenkhoff's, Mrs. Chuck Grant's, and Mrs. Hemba Young's homerooms will take the test in the library.

'Books On Exhibit' Opens Monday In SHS Library

400 Titles Comprise Display; Available For Five Days

"Exhibit of new books for high school readers" will be displayed in the Sikeston high school library next week, October 20-24.

Librarian Frederick W. Huff said, "This exhibit will permit each faculty person and student to review 400 of the best books published in recent months."

The 400 titles comprising the exhibit are covered by annotated, curriculum-related, fully indexed catalogues which provide immediate access to the books of one's interest--in general or particular.

The collection is broken down into 18 main and more than 65 sub-classifications.

BOOKS ON EXHIBIT, who supplies the exhibit, is an national exhibiting-promotional enterprise, now in its 18th year.

Its free service to schools, showing currently selected titles of some 65 important juvenile, trade and university press imprints, has been praised over the years for the efficiency and time-saving organization with which it meets a general need.

"For teachers, for interested citizens and students--for all who want to keep abreast of the best in this basic section of instructional materials--the exhibit is an event not to be missed," said Mr. Huff.

The exhibit will open each day at 7:30 and close each day except Friday when it will close at 1:30.

Miss Lucile Mount's, Mrs. Catherine Matthew's, and Mrs. Tom Wilkins' homerooms are responsible for the decorations for the dance.

In charge of the music for the dance is John Reuber's homeroom.

Mrs. Mildred Robinson's and Miss Almaretta Sidwell's homerooms are responsible for the crowning ceremony, queen's flowers, and the crown.

Responsible for clean-up after the dancy are Murray Sullivan's, Lewis McClenden's, and Jack Mabery's homerooms.

Robert Walker's and Mrs. Joan Brixey's homerooms are responsible for the stage, the announcer, the cars, and the parade around the football field.

Some senior girl will again wear the crown of Sikeston homecoming queen. The football squad will select the girl and her two attendants. In keeping with tradition, the names of the winners will be kept a secret until after the homecoming game.

All Sikeston high school alumni are invited to attend the dance, along with parents and faculty.

Council Members Discuss Induction, New Walkway

The regular weekly session of the student council met Monday afternoon after school. Council members prepared for the monthly homeroom meeting scheduled for Tuesday.

The main topic of discussion was the student council induction ceremony which took place Wednesday during third period. Members discussed procedure and ceremony of the induction and also the purpose and meaning of being a student council representative.

Also discussed at the meeting were some possible uses of student council funds. Among the suggestions was one concerning the landscaping of the cubes in front of the library. Some students were hoping that possibly some flowers or other greenery could be placed there. A few students remarked they were tired of looking at weeds.

Another good suggestion was one concerning the construction of a walkway cover from the math and science building to the field house. Many boys remarked that the long walk from the field house to the main walkway can be a problem in rainy or bad weather. The walkway could also serve another purpose by making it easier on students who park their cars in the student parking lot.

Student council president Don Littleton remarked that participation among students concern taking buses to out-of-town games was poor. He suggested that if students were really that interested in taking the buses, they should make sure enough students were in favor of it.

Matthews Talks To Student Body

Charles D. Matthews, IV, secretary of the board of education, was the guest speaker for the annual induction of the student council in an assembly Wednesday morning.

Mr. Matthews' talk to the students centered around the theme of peace. Since Wednesday was recognized as Moratorium Day, he reminded the students of a similar day in 1869.

He said, "The nation is only as strong as the ones who make it their home. We must work for peace for our entire lives. Peace comes with a desire to speak, learn, and listen . . ."

Principal Roger Sherman opened the assembly by inducting the new student council officers. President Don Littleton then inducted the other members of the council.

Vice-president Dan Hazel presented the oath of loyalty for the entire student body.

Social studies instructor Carl Wright introduced the speaker for the morning.

Quite a crowd journed to Charleston last Friday to see the "Bull Dogs" trim our old time rivels the Blue Jays, by the decisive score of 34 to 7. It was a hardfought fame marred by costly fumbles by both teams.

If You Were the Judge

Car Makers Not Responsible for Speed

Ziggy was a zanny. Despite the fact he was pushing 60, he dressed and acted like a college freshman.

Even the new automobile he bought was a real gasser. He was told by the salesman that it could do over 100 miles per hour and, with his beanie sitting atop his head, he promptly set out to test it. Before long, Ziggy found himself zipping along at 115 miles per hour. He also found, to his chagrin, that he couldn't stop in time to avoid striking the rear of Hilda's car as it was stopped in front of him for a red traffic signal.

Crawling out of the wreckage, Hilda not only sued zanny Ziggy for her injuries, but she sued the manufacturer of his automobile to boot.

"To make an automobile that can go over 100 miles per hour," she complained in court, "is pure negligence. What's more, the manufacturer compounded its carelessness by encouraging purchasers to go that fast by advertising the speed capabilities of the car. Had Ziggy not have had all that power," concluded Hilda, "and had he not been encouraged to use it, the accident would never have happened."

"We're in the space age now," retorted the manufacturer. "Power is the thing. While we may provide it, how it's used isn't our problem."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you hold the manufacturer liable for providing zanny Ziggy with a high powered car?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that the manufacturer of an automobile cannot be held accountable because a car is driven at an illegal rate of speed, that a manufacturer is no more required to make an automobile that's incapable of illegal use than is the manufacturer of a gun is required to make a pistol that can't kill anyone.

Mr. Charles L. Blanton
Daily Sikeston Standard
Sikeston, Missouri

Dear Charlie:

I read your news item of the request by a delegation from the Sunset community for a fair housing ordinance at the last City Council meeting. This letter is not meant as a criticism of anyone but rather to offer supportive public opinion to the councilmen as they consider this request.

I believe there is a sizeable and growing group of Sikeston citizens who believe that a fair housing ordinance is the right action to take. Perhaps this is the time for us to stand up and be counted, re-assuring the councilmen of support.

Fair housing is already a federal law, but because it is still highly controversial with emotional dimensions, the black community is fearful of acceptance when individuals seek to move out into the larger community of better houses. White people are fearful that a racially integrated neighborhood will lessen property values. Researching the facts on a national scale shows this to be myth, but a fair housing ordinance might alleviate the fears on both sides. Other progressive Missouri cities have found it wise and practical to do this. Namely-- Independence, Springfield, Jefferson City, Liberty and Kirkwood.

True, such action would expose the hypocrites (all of us in our various condescending and patronizing ways as well as the outright white racists). Perhaps "the world is pushing for a showdown" and saying: "Christian, Make a decision. Are you or aren't you for brotherhood- where all men are honored and respected as children of God and accepted as human beings with equal rights?" I believe there are many people in Sikeston who feel a fair housing ordinance is consistent with moral integrity and Christian conscience.

Many feel that such action is important, not to legalize rights, for this is already done, but to minimize suspicion and overt hostility. Leaders in the Sunset community have voiced their disapproval of violence, burning, and revolutionary destructive methods. They came to the Council as responsible citizens seeking within the framework of law and order to exercise rights already given them. It is really reasonable to reply, "Wait awhile," as long as public opinion keeps them locked within their ghetto? Is it fair to say, "Work to improve yourself" and then refuse them a better home life when this is financially possible? Recovery, Inc. is a success in spite of its pitifully small public support, but it does not nearly satisfy the needs.

One would have to be blind and deaf not to be aware that an increasingly larger segment of white Sikestonians are overcoming bias and prejudice; that an increasingly larger segment of black Sikestonians are financially ready to upgrade the quality of their homes; that communications between blacks and whites are more open and understanding today than ever before; and that all of us want to affect social progress peaceably within the democratic progress.

The time seems ripe to assure our City Council of a firm base of support in the passage of a fair housing ordinance.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Keith Collins

Merit Scholars Invited to Visit M.U. Campus

COLUMBIA — Missouri's 300 national merit scholars have been invited to the University of Missouri Nov. 7-8 to see campus facilities and learn about programs and opportunities for students and to be guests at the Oklahoma - Missouri football game.

The merit scholarship visit is a part of UMC's effort to encourage the exceptional high school student who has demonstrated superior capability and academic achievement to continue his higher education in this state. The percentage which has selected UMC has been climbing steadily, more than doubling in the last school year.

"We want the merit scholars to know that we are interested in them as future students and want to acquaint them with our ability to meet their special needs on our campus," according to the associate dean of agriculture, Homer C. Folks, chairman of the UMC National Merit Scholarship committee.

The opening day of the conference-- which coincides with high school holidays because of the Missouri State Teachers Association convention-- will enable the visiting high school students to become acquainted with the campus and its programs. Those who desire will be given overnight accommodations, and a bloc of seats has been reserved for them at the football game, which otherwise is sold out.

Initial response has indicated that most of the students will remain overnight. In fact, of the first 97 replies 81 of the students indicated they would remain for the football game.

A similar program was conducted on the campus last year for Merit Scholars interested in programs of the College of Agriculture, with he agriculture faculty providing overnight accommodations for some 30 students. The heavy response this year may result in use of available dormitory facilities or perhaps assistance from fraternities and sororities to house the visitors.
